DUBLIN CIRCUIT COURT

INJURED BY CONCRETE MIXER

(BEFORE JUDGE DAVITT.)

John Counihan, labourer, Sackville avenue, Ballybough, sued Messrs. James Beckett, Ltd., contractors, Ringsend, for compensation for personal injuries sustained in an accident.

The plaintiff, in evidence, stated that the concrete mixer at which he was working "back-fired," and the handle struck him on the right wrist. After he was treated at Sir Patrick Dun's Hospital he went back to work, and after a short period he was dismissed because he was unable to use both his hands. His wage previous to the accident was £2 14s. 6d. per week, and at intervals since he was dismissed he received 30s. a week from the defendants.

Medical evidence for both sides went to show that complete union of the fractured bone had not yet taken place. The doctors gave it as their opinion that the man was now fit for light work, which should not include using ladders.

The judge, treating the case as one of partial incapacity, fixed the compensation at £1 per week.

Mr. A. Lynn (instructed by Mr. J. F. Murtagh) appeared for the plaintiff. Mr. Murnane (instructed by Messrs. Good and Murray) for the defendants.

£3 FOR SLANDER

Mrs. Margaret Butterly, Red Cow, Clondalkin, sued Mrs. Rose Corcoran, Claremont Villas, Sandycove, for damages for slander, which she asserted the defendant spoke of her on November 12th, 1935.

The plaintiff was for twelve months a domestic servant in the employment of the defendant, and when she left the service to get married the defendant, speaking to another woman, said that the plaintiff had taken away a piece of carpet.

After hearing evidence the Judge gave the plaintiff a decree for £3 and costs.

Mr. O. Moriarty (instructed by Mr. Terence Doyle) appeared for the defendant. Mr. A. Lynn (instructed by Mr. C. B. W. Boyle) appeared for the plaintiff.

COMPENSATION TO WIDOW

When the action of Mrs. Catherine Byrne, Rosary Gardens, Dunleary, against Messrs. T. and J. Macken, painters, Patrick street, Dunleary, for compensation for the death of her husband, was called, it was announced that the defendants had agreed to pay Mrs. Byrne £600 in settlement of her claim.

Joseph Byrne, applicant's husband, was employed as a painter by the respondents when he met with a fatal accident at Brookfield place, Blackrock, on September 24th, 1936.

Mr. Nolan Whelan (instructed by Mr. D. H. Charles) appeared for the applicant. Mr. Sean Ryan appeared for the respondents.

CRUMLIN ROAD HOLD-UP

CASHIER SHOT IN THE LEG

"MISS MAY" TELLS OF THE SHOOTING

(BEFORE MR. CUSSEN.)

GEORGE WALSH, Reuben street, South Circular road, appeared on remand on charges relating to a hold-up in August last at Crumlin road. Walsh was charged with having on 20th August conspired with another man, not in custody, to commit robbery at the junction of Clonard road and Crumlin road; with having, at the same place, attempted to kill James Bracken by shooting at him with a revolver, a bullet entering his left leg below the knee, and with having stolen a cash bag, value £1, and its contents, two cheques for £177, drawn on the Crumlin Branch of the Munster and Leinster Bank.

Mr. D. O'Donovan (Chief State Solicitor's Office) prosecuted, and Mr. L. Trant McCarthy, solicitor, defended.

James Bracken, who walked with the help of a stick, said that he resided at Crumlin road, and was accountant in the firm of Morracrete, Ltd., Crumlin. It was part of his duty to cash cheques at the Munster and Leinster Bank, Crumlin, for payment of workers' wages on the date in question. At the junction of Clonard road and Crumlin road he heard a step behind him, and then some one tapped him on the shoulder, and a voice said: "Hey, Mac." He turned round, and as he did so something was thrown in his eyes. He could not see, but some one said: "Drop that bag" or "Let go that bag." Witness held on to the bag, and struggled for a few minutes with some one for possession of it. He then felt a sharp pain in his knee. He did not know what it was, and struggled on; but the bag was torn from his hand. During the struggle he had opened his eyes for a moment, and got a glimpse of what looked like a black stick. He fell to the ground, and, looking up, saw two men running across the road—one was carrying the bag. Witness then shouted for help.

In reply to Mr. Cussen, witness said that he was taken into Mr. Smith's chemist's shop, where his eyes were washed out. He was taken to the Meath Hospital. In the chemist's shop he found his knee was bleeding—there was a wound on both sides of the knee where something had passed through it. He was in the Meath Hospital till the 17th October.

In reply to Mr. O'Donovan, he said that he did not at any time have a clear view of the people who attacked him. In his opinion, the wound had been caused by a shot.

In reply to Mr. Trant McCarthy, witness said that he did not hear any shot being fired at the time. He had perfectly good hearing.

"MISS MAY"

When a female witness was called, Mr. O'Donovan asked the Justice to request the Press not to publish her name, as it might cause certain embarrassment. Matters might be difficult for her family and herself, and the police might have difficulty in securing such witnesses in future.

Mr. Cussen said that he would ask the Press to give her name as "Miss May."

Mr. Trant McCarthy said that it might be embarrassing for his client to have his name mentioned.

"Miss May" then gave evidence, and said that as she was cycling from the city home to lunch on 20th August she saw Mr Bracken walking towards her carrying a case. Two men came up behind him and caught him by the shoulders. She saw one of the men shake something in Mr. Bracken's eyes, and one of them tried to get possession of the bag. Mr. Bracken struggled, and then one of the men got possession of the bag. The men made off, and she heard a shot, and then she saw that one of the men had something in his hand. Mr. Bracken had fallen to the ground before the shot was fired.

In reply to Mr. O'Donovan, she said that she identified the accused man as one of two who had attacked Bracken. He was not the man who threw the stuff in Mr. Bracken's eyes. The other man, who was the fairer of the two, had the bag in his hand. Witness said that on Thursday week last (19th November) she saw the two men on the Crumlin road. She was cycling at the time, and kept the men under observation. She heard the accused man say to his friend: "Say, what's that girl looking at; does she want her face slapped?" She then went to the telephone and rang up Dublin Castle. She had seen the fair man (not in custody) standing near her home one night. Witness said that she identified the accused man as the man who had fired the shot at Mr. Bracken. At the time he had an object in his hand larger than the one held by the other man.

The accused man was remanded until Saturday next.

SUCK DRAINAGE BOARD

IRISH VERSION OF ORDER

SECRETARY'S CLAIM FOR PAYMENT

(BEFORE MR. JUSTICE MEREDITH.)

THE hearing was continued of the action in which Frank J. Kelly, the Square, Roscommon, claimed a declaration against the County Councils of Galway and Roscommon, that from March, 1915, he was secretary of the River Suck Drainage Board, and that since the business of the Drainage Board was transferred to the County Councils of Galway and Roscommon he had been, and is, secretary to the defendants in respect of the business of the Drainage Board. He also claimed an account of what was due to him.

Both Councils denied that the plaintiff was appointed secretary to the Drainage Board, and pleaded that the liabilities, if any, of the Drainage Board were not transferred to them under the Drainage Act, 1924. They further denied that plaintiff performed any duties to the Drainage Board, and said that consequently he was not entitled to any salary.

Mr. Leonard, K.C.; Mr. T. Paul McCarthy, K.C., and Mr. R. Hogan (instructed by Mr. Patrick Neilan) appeared for the plaintiff; the Attorney-General, Mr. Lupton, K.C., and Mr. Barra O Briain (instructed by Mr. Denis J. Hannon) for the Roscommon County Council; and the Attorney-General, Mr. Lupton, K.C., and Mr. S. Keely (instructed by Mr. Louis E. O'Dea) for the Galway County Council.

Mr. Lupton, continuing his argument for the defendants, submitted that the word "business" in the Act under which the Drainage Board was transferred to the County Councils did not include liabilities, and that if the Act provided for the transfer of business that did not mean that the new body had to take over past liabilities.

Mr. Justice Meredith said that he thought that the liabilities must also be transferred.

LAW AND SENSE

Mr. Lupton said that that might be common sense, but that common sense was not always good law. It was a matter for the Legislature if there was an omission from the Act. The Court could not put something into the Act which was not there. Whatever difficulty existed in the past, when the Legislature was situated a long distance away, did not exist now, and they had many cases where, immediately a decision had been given in the Courts, there had been Acts passed through the Legislature to cure any defect from the Government point of view. If the Government meant one thing and the Act said another, the Legislature could declare, after this case, what was meant. If the body to which the business of the Board was transferred had to assume the liabilities, it was right also that it should have the assets.

There was, submitted Mr. Lupton, no contract in a resolution, which was passed at the final meeting of the Drainage Board, recording the hope that the plaintiff would be paid as soon as possible. It was just an example of cheap generosity. The Board hoped that the County Councils would pay Mr. Kelly, and it was plain that they did not care if Mr. Kelly's claim was for a million pounds, as they had not to pay it.

The Minister's Order, he said, transferred to the Joint Committee the drainage business arising in the two counties. In the Irish translation of the order, the word "eireochaidh" arose, the meaning of which was "which will arise," plainly indicating that the Joint Committee had nothing to do with the past.

Where there was inconsistency between the Irish and English versions, the Irish version, he submitted, was entitled to the preference of the Court.

The Drainage Board, said Mr. Lupton, consisted of many members of the Suck Drainage Resistance Committee and others, who refused to pay their rates, and it was illegally constituted. The action also was premature, as it should have been brought against the Joint Committee, which had not yet been set up. It was not possible to get a declaration against a body which was not in existence, and which, therefore, could not have failed to do something.

Mr. T. Paul McCarthy, K.C., for the plaintiff, contended that the business and the liabilities of the Drainage Board were transferred to the County Councils.

Mr. Justice Meredith reserved judgment.

SENTENCE ON POSTMAN TO STAND

(BEFORE THE CHIEF JUSTICE, MR. JUSTICE HANNA AND MR. JUSTICE O'BYRNE.)

The Court of Criminal Appeal refused the application of George W. O'Connor, who had been a postman employed at Pearse street Post Office, Dublin, for leave to appeal from a sentence of 12 months' imprisonment with hard labour, which had been passed on him at the Central Criminal Court on his conviction on a charge of the larceny of a postal packet, containing £340 in notes.

The Chief Justice said that offences of this nature were of the gravest form, and the great danger of reducing sentences in such cases was that those employed in positions of trust might be inclined to take a light view of their responsibility.

Mr. Lavery, K.C. (instructed by the Chief State Solicitor), appeared for the Attorney-General.

They're the best sandwiches I ever tasted! What's in them?"

'Three Counties' spreadable cheese, of course—the delicious cheese that butters on, and makes the most appetising lunch for school children.

'Three Counties' is most nourishing for growing youngsters, too, for over 4 quarts of rich, full-cream milk go into every pound of it. And the price! Here is another reason for its popularity. Three pence will buy a generously sized box, and, as it spreads so easily, it is very, very economical. Give it to your kiddies to-day. They'll love it!

BOYLE MURDER CHARGE

PRISONER TO APPEAL

The Chief Justice, Mr. Justice Hanna and Mr. Justice O'Byrne, sitting as Court of Criminal Appeal yesterday, granted the application of Thomas Kelly, of Boyle, for legal aid at the hearing of his application for leave to appeal from his conviction, at the Central Criminal Court, and sentence of death on a charge of having murdered Patrick Henry, of Boyle.

They assigned Mr. Brereton Barry, K.C., and Mr. Robert Hogan, who had defended him at the Central Criminal Court, as his counsel, and Mr. Christopher E. Callan, who had instructed them at the trial, as his solicitor, to represent him on the hearing of his application for leave to appeal.

The Court also granted his application for a free transcript of the evidence that had been taken at the trial.

Mr. Kevin Haugh (instructed by the Chief State Solicitor), for the Attorney-General, said that he had been instructed that there was no objection to the granting of the request of the application.

On the question of the assignment of legal aid,

The Chief Justice said that the Court always had been reluctant to assign two counsel, and, in fact, never had assigned two counsel when granting free legal aid.

Mr. Brereton Barry said that until a short time ago that had been the position in the Central Criminal Court also, but recently the authorities had been of opinion that, if the trial judge considered that a case was of sufficient importance to justify the assignment of two counsel, no objection should be raised to the provision of public funds for such purpose.

The Chief Justice said that a trial judge had depositions to go on, and by them could see whether a case raised such difficulties as would justify the assignment of two counsel, but the appellant court, being in complete ignorance of them, was in a different position.

Mr. Brereton Barry said that, in his opinion, matters of such importance would arise in this appeal as would justify the assignment of two counsel.

Mr. Haugh, agreeing, said that novel matters would be raised on the hearing.

The Chief Justice said that in these circumstances the Court would assign the same two counsel, and their solicitor, to the applicant.

Dangerous Driving.—At Kilmainham District Court yesterday Andrew Howard, 21 Upper Dorset street, was fined £2, with £1 costs, for having driven a motor lorry in a dangerous manner near Skerries.

LAND COMMISSION APPEALS

AN OBJECTION UPHELD

The Land Commission Appeal Court, consisting of Mr. Commissioner O'Shiel, Mr. Commissioner Heavy and Mr. Commissioner Waddel, upheld an objection to the acquisition by the Land Commission of Bert House, Athy, County Kildare, with a demesne of 195 acres. This is a large house, with 24 bedrooms, owned by Mrs Marion Geoghegan, now 80 years old, and formerly the property of Lord Seton.

It was stated that, not having received a reply to an inquiry made five years ago as to whether the Land Commission intended taking over the property, she spent over £500 on the house alone, and did not want to part with it now. She employs seven servants, and has been confined to the house by illness for ten years.

Mr. W. H. Carson, K.C. (instructed by Messrs. Darley, Orpen and McGillicuddy), appeared for the applicant.

THREE-ACRE HOLDING

Patrick Lardner, Knockdoe More, Clare-Galway, through Mr. Micks (instructed by Messrs. Henry Concannon and Co.), asked to have the benefits of the Land Commission applied to his three-acre holding. He had been tenant of the holding for 45 years at a rent of £3 per annum, and during the past ten years the landlord, Mrs. Honor Kearney, represented by Mr. T. Connolly (instructed by Mr. L. O'Dea), allowed him a reduction of 25 per cent.

The application was granted.

ESTATE THAT COST £25,000

Mr. W. H. Carson, K.C., on behalf of Mr. Francis Fitzmaurice, Mr. Jasper Wolfe and Mr. Wood, appealed against a decision of the Land Commission to take over 398 acres 2 roods and 11 perches of the estate at Castlefreke, Clonakilty, purchased in 1920 from Lord Carbery for £25,000.

Mr. Jasper Wolfe said that if the Land Commission wanted the 398 odd acres it would be better for them to take over the entire estate of 1,100 acres.

The Land Commission representative agreed to this suggestion.

Dublin Relief.—At the meeting of the Dublin Board of Assistance yesterday, the relief supervisors reported that for the week ended 28th November 6,928 cases were relieved at a cost of £3,492 12s. 6d., an increase of 85 cases for £46 17s. over the previous week, and a decrease of 34 cases and of £5 7s. for the corresponding week last year.

TRAINING A NATION

PHYSICAL CULTURE IN GERMANY

ITS ORGANISATION EXPLAINED

HERR VON TSCHAMMER UND OSTEN.

The principles underlying a system of physical training, as we in Germany conceive them (writes Hans von Tschammer und Osten, the Reich Sport Leader), and which we are attempting to put into practice, require that there shall be a strong central organisation formed for the purpose of establishing the rules and regulations necessary for the maintenance and development of such a system. We have accordingly carried out this idea by founding an organisation known as the Reich League of Physical Culture" (Reichsbund fur Leibesubungen), which embraces all branches of athletic sport.

CULTURAL REFORMS

It was not, as is so frequently surmised abroad, because of a ridiculous craze for the indiscriminate centralising of everything that led in 1933 to such radical reforms in the field of physical culture and organised athletics, but rather because National Socialism felt deeply concerned for the future of the German nation from a purely biological standpoint, and at the same time was earnestly desirous of preserving its high standards of culture, and of freeing it from political, religious and economic discord. The first measures taken towards reforming the athletic associations and clubs comprised the dissolution of the Marxist associations and the assimilating of their members into National Socialist Germany. As early as Whitsuntide, 1935, on the occasion of the celebration of the seventy-fifth anniversary of the German Gymnastic Society (Deutsche Turnerschaft), held at Coburg, I was able to state that the expectations of the athletes and sportsmen holding National Socialist views had been fulfilled—namely, that the reforms which had been instituted in all walks of life throughout the Reich had extended to the sphere of physical culture also. The leaders of the Deutsche Turnerschaft, the largest athletic association in Germany, performed an inestimable service when of their own accord they instituted proceedings to dissolve this enormous organisation, thereby furnishing nearly two million German gymnasts to form the nucleus of the Reich League of Physical Culture.

Although the League disbanded the other larger associations, it did nothing to disturb local centres of gymnastic and athletic activity, which, after all, constitute the backbone of national physical culture. According to my latest estimates, there are no less than 45,000 of these local clubs, all of which have been incorporated into the League just as they were. The amount of athletic material which is developed and trained by these local clubs could be seen in the preparations they made for the international sport festival of "Olympia."

ORGANISATION

It goes without saying that all of these 45,000 local organisations cannot be managed from Berlin. The diversity of the various geographical regions and of the genealogical groups which compose the German nation requires that these organisations be divided into more or less regional units, sixteen such units to make up the Reich League. The German term for the unit is "Gau." Each unit, or "gau," takes in a certain number of groups, which form the intermediate organisation between the units, or "gau" managers and those of the local clubs, so that the latter are thus in direct connection wtih the central organisation of the whole Reich.

The administrative work of the Reich League of Physical Culture is most comprehensive, but is carried on quietly and systematically, so that there is no danger of there growing up an "hierarchy of athletic officials." One thing, however, is required of all those connected with the work of organisation—they must keep in touch with the life going on around them. For this reason the headquarters of the League is situated in the Haus des Deutschen Sports on the Reich Sport Field, and around it are located the buildings and fields where the gymnastic and athletic life of the German metropolis is centred.

Just as the State takes under its wing the entire life of the nation, its thoughts and feelings, its work and play—in short, every thing which Friedrich Ludwig Jahn, father of German athletic sports, characterised as belonging to "the people"—in order to preserve all that is best for future generations, so it is necessary and important that the State shall safeguard the future of the nation by making adequate provision for its training of the young. The principal agency of training the young in every State is the school. Upon the quality of the school depends the quality of the growing generation, provided such generation has inherited good health. The National Socialist teacher must re-establish the proper balance between character training and book-learning, placing greater emphasis on the former. In a like manner is the gymnastic and athletic instructor the representative of the State in his field of activity. It is just here that the National Socialist State has made unheard-of efforts, for it clearly recognises that only a strong race of children will produce a hardy race of men and women. In the future, the German physical culture instructor will hold equal rank with teachers and professors in the common schools, the technical schools, and the colleges. The State does not begin with the growing or grown-up boy or girl, but with the very young boys and girls. The gymnastic instructors will be entrusted with developing manly strength in their pupils, as a result of constant and thorough bodily training. These teachers will take courses of instruction at the "Reich Academy of Physical Culture," at the Reich Sport Field. Since the beginning of the present régime, in addition to the compulsory training of the young, voluntary training will be given to members of the National Socialist Party and its subsidiary organisations.

ELECTIVE TRAINING

This scheme of voluntary or elective physical training is arranged in the following manner:—As voluntary organisations, which are all integral units within the National Socialist Party, the "Young Folks' Society" (Deutsches Jungvolk) gives opportunity for physical culture to schoolboys and girls under the age of 14; the "German Junior League" (Deutscher Jugendbund) and the "Young Hitler Association" (Hitler Jugend) to boys aged from 14 to 18 years attending high school or one of the occupational schools; and, finally, the men's organisations—"S.A.," "S.S.," "N.S.K.K." and P.O.—to students at the universities, and colleges. To this list belongs also the voluntary "Labour Service" organisation, which was not established as a military formation, but as a school of hard training, in which every German (up to a certain age), and especially every "brain-worker," must learn how to earn his living by manual labour. The Labour Service, like the school, is a State educational institution, just as the party, which is a voluntary creation of National Socialism, is a school of German Socialism. Within the party itself, and all of its constituent organisations, the most emphasis is laid on the training of character, and in this case particularly on the training of political character. Political training presupposes political instruction to make clear to every German the principles of the National Socialist viewpoint, and with this is co-ordinated a system of physical training designed to strengthen and harden the body. We can note how physical culture runs through all of our educational institutions like a vein of red, never to be severed as long as education itself continues to exist. Physical culture in the schools, as well as physical culture in the party and in the Labour Service, is so arranged that the two never clash, but one is always the complement of the other.

THE GERMAN ARMY

Physical training finds its culmination in the training undergone in the German Army. Even although physical culture is here secondary in its importance to technical military training, yet those in command in the German Army fully realise of what great advantage it is if every recruit enlisted is a good athlete. This alone means that he possesses the best foundation for his military training. Moreover, the military authorities by no means under-estimate the value of physical culture in connection with military service itself. The regulations regarding sport in the Army do not omit mention of physical culture, although this cannot be carried on along such comprehensive lines as in the civil organisations. Enough is prescribed, however, to keep every soldier physically hard and fit and agile.

It may quite properly be asked how all these various spheres of activity are co-ordinated. This question strikes at the crux of the whole problem, for upon its solution depends the success or failure of the entire plan. Germany is governed to-day according to the principles of personal leadership. That is to say, Reich Chancellor Adolf Hitler does not merely exercise administrative functions, but stands at the head of Germany's political life both at home and abroad, and he is alone responsible for every measure that is taken. In addition to this, he is the leader of the National Socialist Party, which, as soon as it had begun its struggle to come into power, inscribed on its banner the political watchword of National Socialist attitude—namely, "Totality"; and to this principle it has steadfastly adhered. That means that this idea must be carried out at all costs by every organisation in Germany concerned with physical culture, if such an organisation is not to become separated from national life, or even opposed to it. When I was appointed by Herr Hitler to be Reich Sport Leader, I took this principle as my guide, and proceeded to come to an understanding with the League of Physical Culture and the National Socialist Party and subsidiary organisations; also with the Young Hitler Organisation, on the one hand, and the Labour Service and the Army, on the other. The result is a system of co-operation which is secure for all time. To the same effect, there is an unwritten agreement of co-operation with the German schools and their staffs of teachers within the general scope of the League of Physical Culture, whereby the league will be much benefited by the accession of teaching material, and, reversely, the league will furnish the schools with what assistance they need to stimulate interest in athletic sport. This co-operation in the realm of physical culture in Germany is a proof that the principle of "totality" is not simply a vague phrase, but a practical and workable proposition. Wherever progress is to be made in Germany, word and deed, precept and practice, must go hand in hand. The customs and usages of the nation, and a system of education controlled by the State and the party must continue to supplement one another. National Socialism has found its way out of a system full of complications into one of rugged simplicity, and in place of a world of shams has set up a world of realities. In the domain of physical culture, I may be permitted to describe the achievements of National Socialism in a brief sentence: National Socialism is on the way to organise the entire German nation in the principles of physical culture.

ART OF MEDIÆVAL EUROPE

PLACE OF IRO-SCOTTISH ORNAMENT

There was a distinguished gathering at the Royal Society of Antiquaries' Rooms, 63 Merrion square, Dublin, last night, when Dr. Peter Meyer, Professor at the Federal Technical University in Zurich, lectured on "Iro-Scottish Ornament and the Art of Mediaeval Europe."

M. Benziger (the Swiss Consul-General) presided.

Professor Peter Meyer's lecture was illustrated by lantern slides. In the course of it he said that the peculiarity of Iro-Scottish art, as compared with Continental art, consisted in the fact that in it the cultural impulse of Christianity led to an enhanced appreciation of native prehistoric art, while on the Continent the same impulse caused prehistoric culture to be supplanted or overlaid by late classical forms.

Iro-Scottish art was the last and richest flowering of prehistoric art. All later classical elements, he said, were, so to speak, retranslated into the prehistorical ornamental style. Irish ornament was the expression of a pre-logical mentality, while classical art represented a more developed level of human consciousness.

In the early Middle Ages classical forms were adopted separately without their original coherence. The more the Gothic style developed the more radically it eliminated this classical element. The late Middle Ages—indeed, the whole Gothic style—would remain incomprehensible without the example of the Irish art, in which the anti-classical component appeared most distinctively.

Speaking of the Locarno agreement yesterday, M. Van Zeeland, Belgian Premier, declared that Belgium was ready to give assurances to France and Germany that she would observe it. "We are not arming against anyone," he continued, "but we must be strong in order to prevent any neighbouring Power from gaining the advantage of an easy victory over us."

FREE STATE BREWING INDUSTRY

BUSINESS MAINTAINED

From the preliminary figures under the Census of Production for the Free State brewing industry in 1935, it would seem that business during the period under review was not too bad. The gross output of stout, porter, ale, and beer was 1,951,070 standard barrels, worth £8,838,287, as against 1,854,334 standard barrels, worth £8,435,613. The total value of goods made and work done was £8,962,265, as against £8,555,446 in 1934.

The net output, deducting cost of ingredients and Excise duty, was £7,558,136, as against £7,204,792 in 1934.

The number of administrative, clerical, and technical staff employés was 803, and of wage earners 3,138—a total of 3,941, or five more than the previous year; while the total amount of wages paid was £583,866, or £3,829 less than in 1934.

IRISHMAN'S DIARY

Spanish Volunteers : The Earl of Iveagh : Potato Rings : Ice Hockey

Spanish Adventure

Whether or not one agrees with the action of the members of General O'Duffy's "brigade" in going to Spain, it is to be hoped that they will not meet with experiences of the kind that befell some predecessors of theirs who went to Spain just a century ago on a similar mission. These were the members of the "British Legion," who entered the Spanish civil war of 1835-6 on the side of Queen Isabella, who was opposed by the forces of Don Carlos, her uncle. Very much the same condition of things existed in the Spain of that day as exists now; the fighting, too, was mostly in the north part of the country—Bilbao, San Sebastian, Santander, etc. The British contingent, which numbered nearly 10,000 men and included cavalry, was an entirely unofficial force so far as Britain was concerned. It was raised chiefly in London, Birmingham and Edinburgh, but there must have been many Irishmen in it. Its commander—Sir George de Lacy Evans—was of Irish family. No complete history of the force was ever written, but, from contemporary newspapers and letters of the participants, what happened is known. It is a sorry story, and a vivid illustration of the risks that attend engaging in other people's wars.

Ill-Starred Enterprise

The moment the legionaries landed the Carlists announced that these foreigners were interlopers in Spain and that any of them made prisoner would be shot. The threat was carried out. The war, in fact, was carried on with the same ferocity as that of to-day. What was worse, though, was the treatment the legionaries received from their own side. None of the promises made to them were kept. Their clothing fell into rags with the rigours of service in terrible weather and was not renewed. They were left to starve, and their pay was hopelessly in arrear. Most of their casualties died from lack of hospital treatment. The Spanish generals, time after time, "let down" de Lacy Evans and his men. One of these generals, during a critical operation, marched his men off the field without even telling Evans of the withdrawal. Another, who was to cover Evans's right in a big attack, set out, but never reached the field. Evans, who had to retire with heavy loss, found later that the Spanish general had returned to his camp because it was raining! Yet, famished and ill-treated as they were by their allies, the legionaries fought bravely, and they and their general were distinguished for their merciful behaviour towards beaten enemies. The end of the legion was tragic, the few survivors reaching England in a state of destitution. Evans seems to have done his best for his men, but could make no headway with the Spanish authorities.

The National Animal

I notice that the Beltane toy people (Mr. and Mrs. Nutall Smith, of South Africa) have kept their word, and put a wooden representation of Dan Bulger (the horse) in their toy exhibition at the Mansion House. Believe it or not, this is the first time I have ever seen an Irish racehorse featured among the toys. But I must also commend the action of the English firm of cigarette-makers who put cards in their packets bearing the names and pedigree and performances of Irish-bred horses in the past. This is really a brain-wave, and what I never can understand about Irish people is the fact that they never seem to take kindly to the horse themselves. Even among the ancient Irish the Brehon laws contained special enactments with regard to the horse. With an Irish-bred winning almost all the big races this season, it is high time the fact got practical recognition; but it has been left for the "foreigner" to advertise the national animal of Ireland.

Potato Rings

Two very fine specimens of old Irish potato rings were sold in Dublin recently. One went to Mr. James A. Farley, of New York, as a gift from Mr. W. T. Cosgrave. The other is now the property of a member of a well-known Irish family, and has gone to London. The first-mentioned was dated in the 1790 decade, and was beautifully pierced after the Adams style. The ring which has gone to London was an earlier specimen, and was pierced and ornamented in a floral and scroll design. The pity about these wonderful old dish rings is that they are never accompanied by the dish, which was generally a little round wooden affair that fitted into the ring. It acted as the receptacle for the potatoes. The collector who sold these two dish rings tells me, however, that in future he intends to get a wooden dish made for the next ring which comes into his possession.

The Earl and Countess of Iveagh

The Earl and Countess of Iveagh are spending a few days in Dublin at present at their house in Stephen's Green. They are accompanied by their second daughter, Lady Patricia Guinness. A tall, fair girl, Lady Patricia is now eighteen. From Dublin Lord and Lady Iveagh are going on to Elveden Hall, their place in Surrey, where they will spend Christmas. Viscount and Viscountess Elveden, who were married in July, have now settled in Regent's Park, but it appears they only spend their mid-week time there—from Tuesday to Thursday. Lord and Lady Elveden are at expected at Farmleigh for Christmas. The Countess of Iveagh, who represented Southend-on-Sea in the House of Commons until last year, is one of the few women in the world to have received the freedom of a constituency. It was in 1932 that she received the freedom of Southend-on-Sea. Lady Iveagh is a daughter of the fourth Earl of Onslow, and before her marriage was Lady Gwendoline Onslow.

Barbers' Craft

The best barbers bring to their work a grave and almost priest-like concern for their customers, which does not, however, prevent them from conversing decorously. As I was having my hair cut the other day the barber made some very acute remarks on the subject of the best method of building up and keeping a good "connection" among the public. Several people had looked into the shop, and, finding a number of customers waiting, had gone away again. On a superficial and uninformed view it seemed to me that business was being lost. The barber, however, soon showed me that I was in error, and that actually it was a sign of good business to have people looking in and going away again. In that establishment, he said, it was "the man in the chair that counted." If he received good attention and was thoroughly satisfied he would return. It was a bad sign in a barber's shop, he said, when the cry was raised: "Take a seat, sir. It'll only be for a minute, sir." The good barber scorned such methods of drawing custom. All of which seemed to me to be sound practical psychology.

The Fastest Game

I see that there has been some controversy about the latest game to be introduced into Great Britain from the American continent—ice hockey. This is said to be the fastest game in the world, and it is also, to judge from accounts of some of the matches, one of the roughest. In a game where the speed of the players reaches thirty miles an hour it will easily be understood that the lot of the referee is far from being a happy one. A Canadian friend tells me that in his country the game, on account of its value as a spectacular attraction, has passed mainly into the hands of professional players, or, as he puts it, it has become a "racket." Although ice hockey has made a good deal of progress in England, it is not likely to spread very far on account of the cost of artificial rinks. In making the ice-bed a layer of concrete, in which brine pipes have been embedded, is laid on a foundation of cork and bitumen, so that the freezing takes place in an upward direction. No matter how warm the air in the rink may become, new ice is always being formed, because the hot air condenses on the surface and freezes. This accretion has to be "shaved" off at intervals. It is now proposed to make imitation ice-rinks with a surface of unbreakable glass, on which the players will use skates fitted with small wheels. This device will not only make the game cheaper, it will also make it faster, and, therefore, even more attractive to those who share the modern craze for speed.

Darieux will be remembered as the star of the film "La Crise est Fini" (The Slump is Over), which was shown in Dublin some time ago. She has recently been in Hollywood making a film with Count John McCormack.

Larceny Charges—In Dublin District Court yesterday Edward Byrne, no fixed address, was remanded until Saturday next on the charge of larceny of a Fainne, shoes and eight rounds of .22 ammunition from a motor car in Cathal Brugha street. Sean Timmons, owner of the car, said that the missing property was value for about £4 10s. Christopher Lennox, Whitehall Cottages, Rathfarnham, was remanded until to-day on a charge of breaking and entering "The Mascot Shop," Milltown, and stealing £1 2s. from two meters.

LINEN AND COTTON INDUSTRIES

WAGES AND CONDITIONS

Wages and conditions of workers in the linen and cotton industries were considered before a Court of Inquiry (under the Industrial Courts Act, 1919), which was held at 33 St. Stephen's Green, Dublin, yesterday. Mr. Henry O'Friel, Chairman of the Tariff Commission, presided, and the other members of the court were:—Mr. C. P. McCarthy, Cork, and Mr. Eamon Lynch, Secretary, Irish Trade Union Congress.

Miss Anderson, Harold's Cross Mills, Dublin, said that the lowest wage a worker could earn in a forty-eight hour week was £1.

Miss Esther O'Hara, damask weaver for the past six years at the Greenmount Mills, Dublin, said that the machinery there might be cleaner. The conditions in the shop were not unhealthy, and with the exception of one corner, the building was quite airy.

In reply to the Chairman, she admitted that she had never complained about the dirt of her machine, but that dirt frequently dropped down on the work.

Miss Holohan, Greenmount Mills, said that at the moment they were short-handed in her department, and for some time past she had been dealing with from 25 to 30 reels, instead of the usual 20. She had not earned over 25s. a week for the past year. She had no complaint to make that the workshop was cold or insanitary, but she did say that she was not earning enough money.

Mrs. J. Monaghan, Boyne Linen Company, Drogheda, and that her weekly earnings were from 25s. to 26s.. Last week she had only earned 15s. 3d., but could have done more work.

Miss May Gibney, who has been employed in the same company for about five years, said that the reason she did not always receive 30s. a week was because the firm was not getting enough orders. She had no complaint to make about conditions in the weaving sheds, and her principal grievance was that she did not get enough work to do. She considered 4s. 11d. for weaving fifty yards of waste twill sheeting quite satisfactory. It took one and a half days to weave that quantity. She could earn, she said, 30s. a week if she had more work to do.

In reply to the Chairman, Mr. Allen, manager, Messrs. Robert Usher, said that their export trade had decreased enormously.

The inquiry was adjourned until 10.45 a.m. to-day.

MISSIONARY WORK

SALE OF WORK IN AID OF FUNDS

The "danger" of mass conversions to Christianity was mentioned by the Right Rev. Bishop Kennedy, formerly of Chota Nagpur, when opening a sale of work in aid of mission funds and the parochial schools at St. Paul's Parochial Hall, Glenageary, Co. Dublin, yesterday.

He said that there was a "danger," at the present time, of about 60,000 persons in India becoming Christian for semi-political reasons. This would be a good thing in one way, but there was a difficulty in providing enough missionaries to look after the spiritual needs of the converts.

Bishop Kennedy also commented on the fact that the medical work of the missions was helpful in introducing the higher caste Indians to Christianity. He said that India provided a far wider scope for young medical graduates, and that women doctors could do particularly good work in that country.

The Rector, Canon D. H. Hall, presided at the ceremony.

The stallholders at the sale, which continues this afternoon, include:—Mrs. Longworth Dames, Mrs. Magimn, Miss Gethings, Miss Macartney, Mrs. Ellis, Mrs. Victor Price, Mrs. Withrington, Miss Morrison, Mrs. Reid, Mrs. Randal Adams, Mrs. Walker and Mrs. Hall.

ST. ANN'S PARISH MISSIONARY SALE

The annual sale on behalf of the work of the Church overseas, organised by St. Ann's Parish, will be held in the Molesworth Hall, Molesworth street, Dublin, to-day and tomorrow. As well as a generous display of fancy and useful articles suitable for Christmas presents, cakes, sweets, country produce, etc., there will be competitions arranged by members of the St. Ann's Youth Guild. Luncheons, teas and suppers will be served each day. The proceeds go to the support of some eleven missionary societies and auxiliaries in India, China, Africa, as well as lesser-known parts of the non-Christian world. At three-thirty each day prayers will be offered up on behalf of the work of the Church abroad and for a blessing upon the sale, but the doors will be open from one o'clock.

As will be seen from our advertising columns, the annual fixture of the Dublin Dog Show Society will be held in the Horticultural Hall, Earlsfort terrace, Dublin, on Saturday, 26th December next (Boxing Day). A liberal classification has been provided for all breeds in order that they may be entitled to the coveted Green Star Certificates. Exhibitors of litters and toy dogs will welcome the news that specially heated rooms will be provided for the benching of their exhibits. A special excursion train leaves Belfast at 7.45 a.m., returning from Dublin at 7.45 p.m. Special day-trip excursion tickets will also be issued by the Great Southern Railways. For the benefit of exhibitors and spectators a microphone will be installed in the show grounds, while arrangements have also been made for a relay of the show by the Dublin, Athlone and Cork Stations.

NATIONAL GALLERY OF IRELAND

A meeting of the Board of Governors and Guardians of the National Gallery of Ireland was held yesterday. There were present:—Chief Justice Kennedy (in the chair), Sir Robert Woods, M.B., B.Ch., F.R.C.S.I.; Dr. Denis Coffey, M.A., M.B., LL.D., President, U.C.D.; Mr. R. Caulfeild Orpen, R.H.A.; Mr. Joseph Holloway, F.R.I.A.I., and the director, Dr. George Furlong, Ph.D.

The estimates for 1937-'38 were considered and approved.

A picture, "The Battle of the Boyne," by Jan Wyck, bequeathed by the late Mr. George Jameson, of Bettyglen, Raheny, Co. Dublin, was gratefully accepted.

THE INDUSTRIAL POLICY

CRITICISM OF GOVERNMENT

The Government had moved too swiftly in their industrial policy, said Mr. D. MacCullough, speaking last night at the annual Aonach na Nodlag, which is being held in the Mansion House, Dublin.

When the tariffs had been put on, said Mr. MacCullough, the Goverment had more or less sat back and waited for results. It has been left to patriotic organisations, like the Women's Industrial Development Association, to educate the purchasing public.

Speaking personally, he said that while the industrial policy of the Government had his fullest support he was convinced that they had travelled the right road too swiftly. In their endeavour to cover the whole field of industry, in the shortest possible time, they had allowed foreign firms, with a reputation and trade covering the English-speaking world, and with vast capital resources, to operate in this country, to the disadvantage of native-owned and capitalised businesses. The foreign firms, because unfortunately this country was still English-speaking, got all the advantage of their wide publicity in English periodicals circulating in this country, an advantage with which the capital resources of a national manufacturer found it difficult to compete against. The names of their products were so well-known as to be almost synonomous with the goods themselves. Added to that they enjoyed numerous other advantages—long experience and the resources of trained labour and capital accommodation. The unfair competition was driving nationally-owned firms into financial difficulties, and making it increasingly difficult to capitalise new undertakings, not sponsored by foreign firms.

It would have been a better and a more national policy, in his opinion, if they had allowed their own new industries to develop naturally; to have given them time to strike in their roots firmly, before allowing the cold wind of foreign-backed competition to blight their young growth.

However, the national manufacturers faced the future with courage and confidence that a National Government would realise its duty to remove any disability. Ireland was determined to develop in proper proportion the industrial side of her economic life, and all women and men of good-will in the nation would wish the movement success and do everything in their power to support it.

T.C.D. NORTHERN ASSOCIATION

ANNUAL MEETING AND DINNER AT BELFAST

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

BELFAST, Wednesday.

The annual meeting of the Trinity College (Dublin) Association of Northern Ireland was held in the Grand Central Hotel, Belfast, yesterday. In the absence, through indisposition, of the President, the Bishop of Derry, the chair was occupied by Mr. R. A. Mitchell, LL.B.

Mr. Herbert Jefferson, honorary secretary, and Mr. G. C. Duggan, C.B., honorary treasurer, presented their reports. Each was highly satisfactory. The former recorded that the membership of the association now stands at 212.

The annual dinner was held in the Grand Central Hotel last night, there being approximately 100 members and guests. Mr. R. A. Mitchell, LL.B., presided.

Telegrams of sympathy in their indisposition were sent to the Provost of Trinity College, Dublin, and the President of the Association.

The Bishop of Down proposed "T.C.D. and the College Societies," and Messrs. J. Bell, Sc.D., F.,T.C.D.; W. A. Beers, B.A., auditor, College Historical Society, and E. J. Furlong, B.A., President, University Philosophical Society, responded.

"Our Guests," proposed by the Chairman, was acknowledged by Professor R. J. Johnstone, M.D., M.P., and Professor W. B. Morton, M.A.

The toast of "The Chairman" was honoured at the instance of Sir Arthur Quekett.

CIVIC AND PRIVATE PLANTING

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—The excellent letter on civic planting in your issue of to-day raises the question as to why certain trees which are highly prized elsewhere—even taking their place as poster illustrations—hardly appear in our repertoire. Foremost is the Acacia, commonly known as "Mimosa," which is the pride of the gardens on the Riviera, flowering branches of which are sold here as decoration. Not only does this flower in profusion virtually the whole winter, but its foliage is the most delicate evergreen foliage in existence. I have seen large trees growing out of doors in this country inland, where the climate is far less suitable than that along our County Dublin seaboard. I have hardly seen a single specimen either in the Howth or Dun Laoghaire neighbourhoods. One can get a packet of Acacia Dealbata seeds, or an assortment of varieties, for a few pence. They grow easily from seed, and make fine flowering saplings within five years or so.

Another attractive, but neglected, plant is the fan palm, known either as Chamærops Fortunei, or Trachycarpus Excelsa (it also has other names, presumably to make it still more difficult). This is thought much of in Monte Carlo, but grows much better and more luxuriantly here. It has astounding properties, since it can easily be moved at any size. It does not mind heat nor cold. It grows well in a dry place, but much better in a wet one. It likes the sun, but grows far larger in the shade. Unlike many exotics (nearly everything we have is exotic), it seeds itself in this country. It is the only plant really at home here which solves the leaf litter problem by the simple expedient of never dropping a leaf. These are only two out of many outstanding examples of neglected plants.—Yours, etc.,

MANNING ROBERTSON.

Daily Programme Review

RADIO ATHLONE: Play, "Widows are so Fascinating" (J. B. McCarthy), 7.15.

NORTHERN IRELAND: Variety, 8.45.

B.B.C. NATIONAL: Musical Play, "Away to the Hills," 7.15.

REGIONAL: Hallé Concert. Conductor, Sir Thomas Beecham, 7.30.

MIDLAND: Organ Recital by G. D. Cunningham, 9.15.

TURIN: Opera, "La Tosca" (Puccini), 8.

HILVERSUM: Symphony Concert. Conductor, Mengelberg, 7.55.

THE Emer Comedy Company, well-known to Radio Athlone listeners, are to present "Widows are So Fascinating," by J. Bernard McCarthy, a Cork playwright.

The Philharmonic Mixed Vocal Quartet, co-operating with the Irish Radio Orchestra, have arranged a programme for broadcasting at 8.45. The quartet, which was awarded the gold medal at this year's Feis Ceoil, is composed of members of the Dublin Philharmonic Society.

Doubtless all who are interested in commerce in the Free State are following the relays of talks from Aonach na Nodlag, which is being run by the Women's Industrial Development Association at the Mansion House, Dublin. To-night at 8.30 Mr. T. D. Findlater, assistant managing director of Messrs. Alex. Findlater and Co., Ltd., will speak as a retailer.

Thursday is becoming habitually an evening when good things overlap one another. First in importance comes the Hallé Concert, with Sir Thomas Beecham conducting, providing a feast for the music-lover. This week's programme includes two symphonies—Brahms' No. 3 in F and Mozart's "Jupiter." Nevertheless, Sir Thomas's interpretation of Elgar's brilliant "Cockaigne" Overture, and Walton's "Facade," which is still something of a novelty among orchestral suites, may possibly provide the real thrill of the whole concert. Relayed from the Free Trade Hall, Manchester, Part I. commences at 7.30 and Part II. at 8.40, in the North and main Regional programmes.

Then there is the Reid Orchestral Concert, conducted by Sir Donald Tovey, from the Usher Hall, Edinburgh, in which Harriet Cohen will play Elizabeth Maconchy's concerto for piano and chamber orchestra. The remainder of the programme for broadcasting is devoted to "The London" Symphony of Haydn.

The College Weekly Concert from the University College of North Wales, Bangor, also attracts with an exceptionally well-varied programme for soloists and choir, to instrumental accompaniment. The two concluding items are Martin Shaw's Fanfare for Christmas Day, to be sung by the college students' small choir, and Geoffrey Toye's arrangement of "Adeste Fideles," in which the audience will take part. (West, 8.45.)

The organ of the Town Hall, Birmingham, with its interesting history closely bound up with Mendelssohn, who played on it in its original form, will be described by Mr. G. D. Cunningham, Birmingham City organist. Afterwards he will give a recital demonstrating the tone and quality of this fine instrument as a contribution to the "Midland Organs and Organists" Series. (Midland, 9.15.)

"Away to the Hills" is a revival of the play by C. Denis Freeman, with music by Mark Lubbock, which is worthy of revival. It was first broadcast in 1934. Set in a small South American Republic, it is a story of love and daring vividly told in words and music, and provides excellent entertainment. There is a splendid cast of singers well known to broadcasting, who will be supported by choirboys from the London College of Choristers, the B.B.C. Theatre Orchestra and Revue Chorus, Reginald Foort at the new B.B.C. theatre organ, and, to create atmosphere, Eugene Pini and his Tango Quartet have also been introduced into the performance.

DUBLIN FRENCH SOCIETY

INTERESTING LECTURE

At a meeting of the Dublin French Society, which was held yesterday afternoon in the Hotel Russell, Dublin, Mrs. W. J. Seeds delivered a lecture entitled: "Les Olivier, Poetes Romand."

After giving some interesting details of the family history of the brothers Juste and Urbain Olivier and of Caroline Ruchet, who became wife of Juste Olivier, the lecturer explained that the part of Switzerland now known as the Canton of Vaud at that time had been created a sovereign State by Bonaparte by the Act of Mediation of 1803, and it was the ambition of the three Oliviers to awaken a national life in their country and to reveal to it something of its soul, and give it a poetry and record its national history.

Broadminded, of a dreamy nature, Juste Olivier, the lecturer stated, was at the same time a good Swiss, a patient investigator and an enlightened patriot. In his poetry he is at his best in clear landscape, blue lake, lofty mountains or sunny vineyards; his composition is easy and sincere, intimate and fresh, without the least touch of reminiscence or imitation. With a little more art, Olivier would have left his mark on French literature of his time. In his songs Olivier shows a certain amount of original philosophy; he has drawn his subjects from old rhymes and popular legends and traditions.

The lecturer mentioned the life-long friendship which existed between Caroline and Juste and the great French writer and critic, St. Beuve, and stated that it was the Oliviers who were responsible for St. Beuve's appointment at the University of Lausanne, where he gave a course of eighty-one lectures on Port-Royal, which subsequently formed the material of his famous masterpiece. Juste Olivier also secured for his national paper, The Swiss Review, a number of St. Beuve's early satirical critiques which were published annoymously, and which St. Beuve would not have dared to publish in Paris at the time.

Mrs. Seeds read extracts from a number of Juste and Caroline Olivier's poems to illustrate points in her lecture.

Dr. Benziger, Consul-General for Switzerland, presided.

The engagement of Miss Nelly Adamson, the English-born lawn tennis champion of Belgium, and Pierre Landry, the well-known French player, is announced. They are to be married at the end of January, 1937.

U.S. SHIPPING STRIKE

CLASH AT NEW YORK DOCKS

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

SAN PEDRO (CALIFORNIA), Wednesday.

Because non-union dockers handled two British ships—the liner Pacific President and the freighter Cape Horn—in Vancouver, dockers who are on strike here will refuse to attend to these ships at this port.

An announcement to this effect was made to-day by the joint strike committee of the union of longshoremen. The Pacific President is due here to-day, and the Cape Horn to-morrow.

When the French liner Champlain arrived in New York she was unable to discharge 600 tons of her cargo. This was due to retaliatory action by the union of Longshoremen for the refusal of French dockers to unload the liner Washington in Cherbourg. New York dockers refused to discharge anything from the Champlain except mail and perishables.

The French dockers' action was in sympathy with the American seamen's strike, but this strike is not recognised by the New York branch of the Longshoremen's Association. The cargo of the Champlain will probably return to France.

A clash between 750 strikers and police at the New York docks to-day resulted in eight arrests and two hospital casualties. The strikers stoned taxis and upset a police car during a demonstration on the pier from which the liner s.s. Manhattan was scheduled to sail to-day. The liner had been delayed several weeks by the strike.

An Italian-built aeroplane, with three engines and fitted with variable pitch propellers, broke two international height records, it is claimed in Rome. The first was made on November 29, with 2,000 kilos load, the machine reaching a height of 23,493 feet. The second, on December 1, was with 5,000 kilos load, the machine reaching a height of 20,181 feet.

RESTLESSNESS IN CHILDREN

A common cause of restlessness in children is constipation. When a child's bowels are full of poisonous fermenting waste-matter natural rest is impossible.

The safest way to give your child a thorough internal cleansing is 'California Syrup of Figs,' which is a pure fruit laxative. It sets up a ntural movement that carries away all the clogging, hard waste-matter and leaves the little insides sweetened and clean. Once a child has got rid of all that disagreeable sour matter that has been upsetting him he sleeps soundly and wakes up the picture of brightness.

Ask yourself if your child is hampered by poison spreading from unhealthy, clogged bowels? A spoonful of 'California Syrup of Figs' will make him sweet tempered and happy in a very few hours.

Remember—a child should never miss a ... this regularity ...

CONVERSION OF MONEYS

SOLICITOR GETS THREE YEARS

"A PAINFUL CASE," SAYS JUDGE

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

ARMAGH, Wednesday.

At the Ulster Winter Assizes to-day, before Lord Chief Justice Moore, James F. K. Anderson, solicitor, Armagh, was arraigned, and pleaded guilty to charges of converting to his own use £1,500 3½ per cent. War Stock entrusted to him as a partner in the firm of Messrs. Monroe and Anderson, Armagh, by Robert Warden, Killylea; also of converting to his own use £426 belonging to Robert Warden; £778 8s. 10d. War Loan belonging to George Lamberton, of Mullyloughran; £157 and £109 9s. 2d. which was entrusted to him as trustee under the will of Tobias Maguire, Armagh, and £184 13s. 10d. entrusted to him by Patrick McKee, Segahan, as administrator of Ellen McArdle.

Mr. Charles Sheil, barrister-at-law (instructed by Mr. J. G. Lennon) said that never since he was called to the Bar had he approached a case with greater regret than this one. The accused man was charged with a very grave offence, in which he had involved the reputation of one of the most honourable firms in the North of Ireland. He had not only ruined himself, but his highly-respected father, who was known to all of them, as a result of this catastrophe, was confined in a mental home, and his mother's heart was broken. The firm had gone into voluntary bankruptcy, and a dividend of over 10s. in the £ would be paid to the creditors; but Messrs. Monroe and Anderson would leave no effort untried to enable them to pay the creditors to the utmost penny.

PLEA FOR LENIENCY

It was terrible that this catastrophe should come on a man who had practised in that Court for years. He was aged thirty-six years, and at that age had come to the end of an honourable career. He asked his lordship for leniency for this man, who met his downfall through betting, and, when he lost, endeavouring to retrieve his position.

The Rev. Dean Tichborne, having given evidence of previous good character, the Judge said that he had been nineteen years on the Bench, and had never had to deal with a more painful case. The accused man had embezzled nearly £3,000. He had lost his social position, betrayed an honourable profession, betrayed the honourable firm in which his father and himself were brought up. He must do his duty as a judge, and the least sentence he could impose on him was three years' penal servitude.

INSURANCE FRAUD

Thomas Hannaway, insurance agent, Armagh, pleaded guilty to forging the death certificate of Louise Ritchie, of Armagh, as a result of which the Prudential Insurance Company were defrauded.

There were several charges of a similar nature preferred against the accused man, and Mr. Beattie, K.C., who appeared for the Crown, said that in all eighty-four certificates had been forged.

Mr. Charles Sheil pleaded for leniency, and Senator McLaughlin gave evidence of previous good character.

The Judge sentenced the accused man to twelve months' imprisonment, with hard labour, from the first day of the Assizes.

A CIVIC GUARD CHARGED

FIRED SHOTS IN SELF-DEFENCE

KILLARNEY, Wednesday.

At Killarney District Court to-day, Garda Patrick Shanley, Lauragh, Kenmare, was charged on seven counts with being in unlawful possession of firearms and ammunition; with attempting to discharge loaded firearms with intent to maim; unlawful use of firearms and ammunition; possession of firearms and ammunition with intent to endanger life; assaulting Patrick McCarthy by pointing a loaded firearm at him and discharging firearms on the public road.

Sergeant Sheehy, Direen, said that the defendant had made a number of detections in the district and as a result certain people in the district were hostile towards him.

Patrick McCarthy, Glenrasta, said that on Sunday night, the 9th August, at Lauragh, Shanley accused him of having fired stones at him, and witness denied having done so. Witness was in the company of seventeen or eighteen men in the village, and Shanley presented a gun towards the crowd and said: "Whoever fired the stone at me to-night can stand out now if he is a man." Witness stepped out and said that he was charged wrongfully and Shanley directed the gun at him and said he would give him the contents of it. Witness hit the barrel of the gun, and a shot went off. Witness tried to close with defendant, and another shot, not directed at witness, was fired by Shanley. Shanley then went home, but re-appeared a few minutes later with the gun in his hand, and said to the crowd: "If ye don't all buzz off I will blow your brains out." Shanley then went home.

Cross-examined, witness said that he never made the threat that he would incriminate Shanley, rightly or wrongly, sooner or later. He did not give orders to the crowd to stone Shanley.

Michael Healy, Fehanaugh, said that he was convicted by Shanley for stealing a bicycle. He was one of the crowd at Lauragh on the night in question. He corroborated the evidence of McCarthy as regarding the firing of the shots.

Jeremiah Sullivan, Droumerkee, said that Shanley did not mean any harm.

Superintendent Hart, Killarney, said that he suspended defendant following investigations into the case on 15th August. Guard Shanley was a highly efficient officer, and he was very much surprised at the allegations made. Something extraordinary must have occurred to account for the Guard's behaviour on the night in question.

DEFENDANT'S EVIDENCE

Patrick Shanley, the defendant, said that since March last nuisance was deposited outside his married quarters on several occasions. On the night of August 9th, when leaving for the barracks, he was stoned by a mob that had gathered outside his house. He went to the barracks and asked to be relieved of duty that night, as he was afraid his house would be attacked. He took the shot-gun and six cartridges, as he was afraid of the mob, who were like a lot of wild animals outside his door. When returning home stones were again thrown at him. He fired two shots into the air. As he approached his house one of the crowd shouted: "Here comes Sherlock Holmes." McCarthy tried to grab the gun from him, and another man caught him. He stepped back and fired two shots in the air. He brought the gun and two cartridges back to the barracks in the morning. Whatever he did was in self-defence.

Mr. C. Healy, solicitor, who defended, asked that informations be refused in the indictable charges.

Mr. Liston, State Solicitor, who prosecuted, said that, as far as he could see, the defendant had been an exemplary and efficient Guard.

District Justice Connor said that he was [convinced] that there was no case in the [indicta]ble charges, and there was no intention [to en]danger life. He did not wish to give [sa]tisfaction to the men who gave ... that day. He ... refused ... charges, and ...

Hoey, Rabolland House, Julianstown, Drogheda, who won outright the Darcy Thompson silver cup for the best butcher's beast sold at the event. Mr. P. Killeen, Sandycove, Dublin, was the buyer.

Entries advanced from 235 last year to 297, and the judges were well pleased with the quality, particularly among the prize-winners. An indication of this was provided by the failure of a second prize-winner at Navan on the previous day to gain more than a reserve.

But, whereas, at Kells, trade was good in small cattle, business was strongest in the heavy animals to-day, and, while bullocks made good business, the demand for heifers was slow, and there was a margin of 4s. or 5s. a cwt. in favour of the bullocks. A number of the prize-winners were not offered for sale, but those that were averaged 30s. a cwt. The general average was about 25s. per cwt. for beef.

At a weight of 9¼ cwt. Mr. Killeen's purchase worked out at about £5 per cwt. In addition to the Darcy Thompson Cup, Mr. Hoey also won the Hereford bronze medal for the best beast of that breed, which was a first prize-winner in his class.

The Roriston Cup for the best shorthorn bullock was awarded to Mr. Thomas Fagan, Antylstown, Navan, who also exhibited a number of prize-winning beasts, including the winner of the Auctioneer's Cup for the champion beast in the show.

Mrs. Darcy Thompson, Rathnally, a successful exhibitor in a number of classes, secured the Aberdeen-Angus silver medal for the best animal of that breed, with a bullock which was a first prize-winner in the early maturity classes.

IRISH CHRISTIAN FRONT

BRANCH FORMED IN CLONTARF

At a meeting which was held in Clontarf National Schools, Dublin, last night, to form a branch of the Irish Christian Front, Senor Gomez, who was introduced as a refugee from Spain, gave a short address on the situation in that country. He said that the Republican Government had promised things to the workers, but had been unable to fulfil their promises. The Government, so-called, had never been one in fact.

Mr. Liam Breen, who presided, said that the Irish Christian Front had been formed to combat Communism, which was very active in Ireland. They intended to work for the creation of a public opinion which would combat Communism. The spread of Communism could be checked by ending the abuses which led to its adoption by the workers—sweated labour and bad housing. There was something good in Communism, but that good had been taken from Christianity.

Under its present controllers there was no fear that the Christ[ian Front] would become a political party, an[d] ... ring in later years ... a constitution such ... possibility. certainly would take steps to come to the assistance of her protégé, while France hardly could remain passive if Prussian and Italian troops should appear on her southern frontier. The situation is fraught with the most fateful possibilities, and a false move by anybody might lead to immediate disaster.

Events in Spain are sufficiently tragic in themselves; but they are only in the nature of preliminaries to the world struggle for which all the nations are preparing. All hope of a permanent peace seems to have vanished. Although it is only eighteen years since the Armistice was signed on the Western front feverish preparations are being made for another war on a universal scale, and, in spite of all the efforts of the peacemakers, the world seems to be moving inexorably towards catastrophe. Everywhere during the last two or three years there has been talk of economic recovery; but what does that apparent recovery really mean? Unemployment has been reduced in all the manufacturing States largely on account of the renewed activity of the armament firms. Millions upon millions of pounds are being spent in the production of weapons of war. Fighting aeroplanes are being turned out in enormous quantities; hundreds of thousands of tanks are being produced, and the race for armaments is far more serious than it was in the years before the Great War. Even Great Britain, who led the movement towards disarmament, has been compelled by bitter circumstances to reverse her policy in this respect. She has discovered that without adequate fighting forces no nation nowadays can hope to exert the slightest influence upon world affairs, and her factories are working overtime in an effort to set her defences in order before the blow falls. The blame for this condition of affairs must be laid at the doors of those countries that are being governed by dictatorships. They smashed the Disarmament Conference; they wrecked the League of Nations. By virtue of their aggressive policies they forced their peace-loving neighbours to strengthen their defences, thus creating a vicious circle which threatens to sweep the whole world into its devastating orbit. Germany, Italy and Japan stand together, carrying the standard of totalitarian absolutism, and making no secret of their determination to expand, whatever may be the cost. The democracies are being isolated slowly but surely; if they do not take counsel together they will be annihilated.

The Hidalgo

Lecturing at University College, London, Professor Walter Starkie spoke of Cervantes as a mind of Shakespearian strength. He said that "Don Quixote" is no buffoonery, but a work which must be interpreted in the tragic sense if it is to be interpreted aright. In this Dr. Starkie asserted anew the opinion of the best English critics, which was not popular when it was put forward first by Charles Lamb. On the Continent, and especially in Spain, the setting of Cervantes beside Shakespeare as a tragic master seems no paradox. Writers whose ignorance of English denies them enjoyment of the poetry in the plays see only the grand outline of Hamlet or Macbeth, and they deny that these have the merits of the Spanish author's work. Here we meet the inevitable dilemma, when works in different languages are compared; critics always will be partial to those which come home to them in the tongue of their childhood. When we assess the Spanish and the English masters, and make all due allowance for the linguistic difficulty, we feel that he of Arden has the advantage in one aspect after another. Yet there is just one quality in which Cervantes must be admitted to excel. He drew a gentleman. There is not in all Shakespeare's splendid medley of humanity one character which we love as we are led to love Don Quixote, with tender respect and pity. Doubtless, Shakespeare drew the finest figures of womanhood in all letters in Rosalind, Perdita, Viola—women in happiness, women in sorrow, women noble and lovely. He drew no such men. His Cæsar is a prig, his splendid Coriolanus is warped in pride, his Hamlet is morbid, his Lear is the author of his own woes, though Kent is a faithful servant and Adam a forlorn type of antique service. On the other hand, Don Quixote is noble always, even in absurdity. He is anxious to spend himself; he is apologetic to the poor and defiant towards the mighty. If he had inherited Hamlet's uneasy duty he would have performed it with directness—he would have challenged Claudius and Denmark's rottenness. If he had been rejected of Rome, like Coriolanus, he would have died in heroic starvation, but would not go over to the enemy. In Lear's place he would have carried a happy heart into the wilderness of the world, or he would have fallen, perhaps, in clean battle for his throne. He never succeeded, it is true; but Shakespeare's men always failed. The defeat of a Quixote was never shameful—it was akin to victory. This creation of a wholly lovable, even if laughable, figure is Cervantes's claim to the tribute which Dr. Starkie cited; and it is well, in a time when literature is almost uniformly disillusionised and sour, to be sent back to a hero of illusion who lifts our spirits. It may be the moral of the story that gentlemen will get hard usage; but we prefer this doctrine to the modern writers' teaching that gentlemen do not exist.

The British Army

When the British Government decided to re-arm, its programme meant that the personnel of the Services would have to be increased, and a recruiting campaign was opened. So far, the results of that campaign have been both unexpected and disquieting. ... have been no ... avy and the Air ... the number of ... Army has been ... might have ... nt, in order to ... has brought in ... reforms which ... more attractive. ... ct. In a speech ... on Tuesday made by Mr. Duff Cooper, the Secretary for War, great stress was laid on this fact. "There is no sign of any improvement in recruiting for the Regular Army," he said. "The numbers are steadily diminishing, and, unless some great alteration takes place in the near future, in a year or two the system will break down. We shall no longer be able even to garrison our Empire, even supposing that the most complete peace prevails throughout the world." At first sight one might be inclined to explain this shortage by the assumption that the man in the street is so thoroughly sick of war that he will not enlist, but that explanation cannot be put forward. The Navy and Air Force are well supplied, and even the Territorials are getting plenty of recruits, so that the situation in which the Regular Army finds itself is genuinely puzzling. Whatever the reason for the shortage may be, the British Government cannot feel secure while it continues, and it may find itself compelled to take more drastic steps in order to fill the ranks. One may be certain, however, that no form of conscription would be enforced until every other means had been tried; for the voluntary system in Great Britain always has had excellent results in the past, and cannot be lightly abandoned.

Taxis for Tipplers

In Tulsa, pride of Oaklahoma, the taxi-cabs have come to the rescue of the reveller. Taxi-cabs have been discharging this duty almost since their inception, but in Tulsa a very special effort has been made. The proprietors of two garages now provide a miniature breakdown gang, which may be summoned instantaneously by telephone. The breakdown gang consists of one taxi-cab, manned by two employés of the company. Both men assist the customer into the taxi-cab, and then one of them drives him home while the other follows with his motor car. The system obviates two sources of irritation. If the reveller had driven his own motor car, it is conceivable that he would have been annoyed later on by some officious cloud of a police officer, with nothing better to do than to stop law-abiding motorists who happened to be driving home at five o'clock in the morning after a tiring day and three small whiskies. On the other hand, if the motorist decided that he was bored with driving his own motor car, and took a taxi-cab, it might happen on the following day that he could not recall precisely where the motor car had been left. What with rising taxation, seven children and a lot of other problems, it would be senseless to impose this additional strain upon a mind already working at full pressure. Hence the Tulsa plan; and, while we believe that it will work on the majority of occasions, we hope that the inventors have not overlooked the one circumstance in which it would fall to the ground. The highly sensitive feelings of a man who has been to a good party—i.e., a party with gin, whiskey, beer, brandy and methylated spirits—make him an unpredictable patient. At 4.30 a.m. he may order the breakdown gang with a prayer of thanksgiving for abundant mercies; and at 4.45 a.m. it is reasonable to suggest that he will be locked in a death struggle with two gangsters—one of whom wants to kidnap him, and the other to steal his motor car.

OBITUARY

THE REV. VISCOUNT MOUNTMORRES

The Rev. Viscount Mountmorres, Rector of St. Paul's, Wokingham, died in a Reading nursing home yesterday, aged sixty-four. He had been ill for many weeks. The Rev. William Geoffrey Bouchard de Montmorency Viscount Mountmorres was born in September, 1872, and was the sixth holder of the title. The Viscountcy—in the Peerage of Ireland—dates from 1763. It was preceded by a Barony, created in 1756, and a Baronetcy conferred in 1631. Viscount Mountmorres succeeded his father in 1880. The family's home was in Ireland. He was educated at Balliol College, Oxford, where he was an exhibitioner, and early in life was faced with the necessity of earning his living. He became director of Tropical Research at Liverpool University, and was during his early life explorer, commission and general merchant, journalist, lecturer, serial writer and a motor salesman. He was made a deacon in 1913, and ordained in 1914, and later travelled widely in America, West Indies, Egypt, Morocco, the Sahara, Asia Minor and Africa, where he journeyed 10,000 miles. In 1907 he acted as honorary A.D.C. to the Governor of Jamaica at the time of the Kingston earthquake, and received the thanks of the Jamaican Government for his services in connection with the earthquake. He was Vicar of Swinton, 1917-25, and Vicar of South Farnborough, 1925-33. He was Rector of St. Paul's, Wokingham, from 1935, and was Proctor in Convocation for the Diocese of Guildford. He was also a chaplain of the R.N.V.R., and was formerly a Lieutenant in the R.N.V.R. In 1905 he was awarded the Society of Arts silver medal for contributions to ethnography. He had lectured extensively. He belonged to the Church of England, and when in 1935 a protest was made at Wokingham against certain alterations in the Services, he held that the Prayer-Book, which was framed for worship 300 years ago, had to be adapted to modern use. His first wife, whom he married in 1893, died in 1931, and there is one daughter. In 1934 he married again, and his wife was formerly Miss Temple Irene Cross, of the Hermitage, Isle of Wight. He is succeeded by his cousin, the Rev. A. R. A. B. de Montmorency, who has been Rector of Doune, Perthshire, since 1922.

LONDON LETTER

DANGER IN SPAIN

59 FLEET STREET, LONDON,
WEDNESDAY NIGHT.

THE meeting to-day of the Non-Intervention in Spain Committee, held at the Foreign Office, was possibly the most important of the series yet held. The representatives of the many States present showed signs of anxiety and worry over the very delicate situation in Europe brought about by the civil war. The rush of interested countries to send munitions and aeroplanes, if not men, to the scene of hostilities is creating a position which may become very dangerous at any moment. At the meeting to-day it was decided that the question of volunteers shall be discussed by the Sub-Committee on Friday, and that the plan, already approved in principle for the supervision of the importation of arms by land and sea into Spain should be submitted to each side in the war. On this point Portugal did not vote, and in the diplomatic world the opinion is that nothing can come of the move, inasmuch as neither side can do without the supplies they are receiving, and will welcome them as long as they have ports into which they can enter. No longer is there doubt as to these supplies, as Russia is sending, almost without disguise, tanks, lorries and guns, as well as munitions and food stuffs, to the Spanish Government, against the supplies reaching General Franco from Germany and Italy.

Armistice Plans

Both France and Britain are anxious to put forward proposals for mediation in Spain, but it is felt that little can be done until there is a complete cessation of all foreign help to either side. If such a situation can be reached the two parties would be invited to consider the terms of an armistice, in the hope that an end would be reached of the struggle that is wrecking Spain. People who have been on a visit to the country are of opinion, however, that the civil war is one to the death, inasmuch as neither side will give way while it has the slightest hope of ultimate victory. One side recalls the burnings and murders of the early days of the struggle, while the other bears in mind the execution of every Red who has fallen into the hands of the insurgents.

Foreign Volunteers

While it is known that there are foreign volunteers fighting for one side or the other in Spain, it is impossible to say with accuracy how many there are, though the number must be considerable. Until the arrival of the Germans there was a preponderance of volunteers on the side of the Government. To balance the Germans who are supposed to be joining General Franco, there are many Russians on the Government side. From France there are men in considerable numbers fighting on both sides, though the great majority are for the Government. The British and Irish volunteers are comparatively few in number as far as is known, and these are divided between the two parties.

Help for Belgium

Mr. Eden was called upon in the House of Commons to-day to state if it was intended that our engagement to support by armed force France and Belgium in the event of an act of aggression should bind us when such aggression arose as a result of action by France under the Franco-Soviet pact, or through France's treaties with the Little Entente or Poland. In reply Mr. Eden said that engagements of this country in the matter of assistance to France and Belgium under the Treaty of Locarno were clearly defined in that agreement. While he could not undertake, while negotiations for a new treaty were in progress, to discuss the possible provisions of that treaty, it was the Government's intention that the scope of its obligations in the new treaty should approximate as closely as possible to those in the Treaty of Locarno. Asked whether our pledge to defend Belgium extended to the Belgian Empire, Mr. Eden said the guarantees given under the Treaty of Locarno were clearly limited to Europe by the wording of the Treaty.

Army Recruits

The medical officer at the recruiting headquarters in Great Scotland Yard to-day inspected the first batch of "reduced standard" recruits under the new scheme to encourage enlistment in the Army. The twenty three men are to be drafted to different units in the R.A.S. Corps, and further decision as to their future will be taken at the end of the month. The Army authorities have come to the conclusion that, whereas the number of men capable of doing any job in the Army may be limited, there are men capable of doing one job at least, this meaning that a man who has to wear spectacles will no longer be rejected, and men will no longer require to be of certain height or weight or have the usual required chest measurements. It is agreed that chest measurements may be poor because the men do not know how to breathe properly. This does not convey that nobody will be ineligible for the Army, but that men who in the usual way would be rejected will be eligible for all sorts of positions, which need not be filled by men who are absolutely physically fit.

Preservation of the Countryside

The Council for the Preservation of Rural England is to take up the protection of country lanes and roads used by walkers from invasion by public service vehicles. The Council has ascertained the opinion of all its affiliated bodies and branches, and the matter will be placed before the Minister of Transport. Before public service vehicles can use a road or lane the consent of the Traffic Commissioners has to be obtained, and, at the same time, objections raised by local authorities and other interests concerned are entitled to be heard. The Road Traffic Act, however, makes no reference on the matter of amenities, considering new roads for service vehicles solely from a traffic standpoint. The point at issue is that narrow roads which are not required for vehicles are unnecessarily and expensively converted for mechanical traffic to the detriment of the pedestrian and rambler, while the natural beauty is destroyed.

British Art for Berlin

Professor Rudolf Hellwag, who was in London in 1914 with the idea of arranging an exhibition of contemporary British art in Berlin, is again here, and his object is the same, for his mission is to ascertain the opinion of leading artists as to the advisability of such an exhibition. One of his strongest supporters is Sir John Lavery, who knew the Professor when he was living in London before the war, promoting international exhibitions. The Professor has received favourable expressions of opinion from a number of artists, who are not only willing to send their works to Berlin, but to assist in making the venture a success. The German public are greatly interested in modern British art, and it is thought that the exhibition, if arranged, will be a success.

FRANCE AND THE WAR IN SPAIN

GOVERNMENT HANDICAPPED BY ITS SUPPORTERS

NO DRASTIC ACTION YET CONTEMPLATED

QUESTION OF VOLUNTEERS AND ARMS SHIPMENTS

FRANCO-BRITISH talks are proceeding daily as regards Spain's appeal to the League and the tightening-up of the Non-intervention Convention. It cannot be said with confidence, however, that there is a cut-and-dried programme; for the French Government obviously feels that it is too handicapped by its Communist supporters to take the initiative on its own account, or to proclaim that it will follow Britain's every move.

Official circles in Paris are reticent when confronted with pointed inquiries where Spain is concerned, and it is by no means certain that to-morrow's debate in the Chamber will yield an unequivocal statement of detailed policy.

For instance, Reuter is reliably informed that no drastic action is contemplated at present to prevent shipments of arms to Spain, owing to what is regarded in Paris as the sufficient reason that such a ban could not be made effective. French ships with a cargo of arms might leave bound for Mexico, and tranship arms on the high seas to another vessel, which could proceed to Spain. The argument is that a ban would be ineffective unless all arms exports are stopped, which would be unreasonable.

There is also no intention at present of banning the departure of volunteers. Already many hundreds of French left-wingers and German and Italian Socialist exiles have gone to fight for the Spanish Government. The utmost that might be done is to prevent the open enlistment of such volunteers by recruiting officers.

GRAVITY OF SITUATION INCREASED

While neither the British nor the French Government has taken any active steps towards mediation in Spain, the two Governments are in close touch, should the opportunity for mediatory services offer itself, says the Press Association.

The French and British Governments have throughout the strife in Spain worked in perfect harmony in such action as has been taken.

It is expected that the plan which the Non-Intervention Committee approved yesterday for supervision of the importation of arms into Spain will be submitted to the parties in Spain within the next twenty-four hours.

The question of volunteers for Spain was brought before the Non-Intervention Committee by the British representatives. It was considered whether an embargo should be placed on men as well as munitions.

The British delegates adopted the position that the gravity of the Spanish situation is increased by the presence of considerable numbers of foreign nationals who are fighting on either side. Lord Plymouth, chairman, told the Committee of Britain's anxiety in the matter, which, it was afterwards announced, the Sub-Committee will fully consider to-morrow.

The British Government has received information, says the Press Association, that there are already in Spain, in addition to the 5,000 Germans reported on Tuesday, about 4,000 Frenchmen, a number of Russians, and a small contingent from the Irish Free State.

BRITISH M.P.'S NARROW ESCAPE

HEAVY FIGHTING IN MADRID

FROM J. R. ALLWORK, REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT IN MADRID.

MADRID, Wednesday.

Two British M.P.'s—Captain J. R. J. Macnamara and Mr. Crawford Greene—had a narrow escape to-day when two bombs fell near them in Jordan street during an air raid. Neither was hurt.

For the past twenty-four hours Madrid has suffered air raids in abundance. The

NEUTRALITY ZONE VIOLATED

The neutrality zone of Madrid has been violated for the first time, says Reuter's Correspondent. The shells—large ones, judging by the damage they have done—included one which fell within ten yards of the British Embassy.

worst, at least judging by the sound, was shortly after 11 p.m. last night. Over twenty heavy bombs were dropped in the university city region. The bombers came back again early this morning and bombed the same places, evidently in an attempt to hold up or to prevent entirely the Government advance in this sector.

At eleven o'clock this morning they dropped more bombs, some of which landed in Jordan street, where are situated a branch telephone exchange and a station which supplies electric current for the Madrid railway. The loss of life is not believed to be high, but there were many pathetic scenes.

MOTHER MISSING

A woman peasant was seen running about the street with a small baby in her arms crying "This is not my child. Where is her mother?"

No one knew where the mother was, but all could guess.

Since before dawn there has been heavy fighting in the university city, and, as I write this despatch, my windows are being continually shaken by the explosion of bombs from the insurgents' aeroplanes and Government artillery fire, which has, in the past hour, become more intense.

The evacuation of women and children from Madrid continues. To-day I saw a long convoy of taxi-cabs all labelled in Catalan—a language quite different from Spanish—"evacuation of Madrid."

BOMBS' VICTIMS

Captain MacNamara and Mr. Crawford Greene came near to being killed by a big aerial torpedo, according to the H[illegible] Correspondent. They had a clear vi[illegible] the fall of the bombs, which kill[illegible] number of wo[men] and children, and [illegible] took photograph[illegible] firemen [illegible] busy going thro[illegible] [illegible] lay, [illegible] under w[illegible]

In addition to ordinary bombs the insurgents dropped a number of incendiary bombs.

Thirty machines were in action over the city during an air raid at 3.30 this afternoon. Finally Government 'planes succeeded in driving off the insurgents.

Air raids are considerably wearing down the civil population, the Havas Correspondent adds, particularly children, many of whom are suffering from nervous trembling.

The party of British M.P.s here have decided to endeavour, through diplomatic channels, to telegraph to General Franco protesting against the bombardment of the civil population in Madrid.

"GAS MASKS NEEDED"

BRITISH M.P.S' APPEAL

MADRID, Thursday.

The British Parliamentary mission in Madrid has sent Wing Commander James in London the following telegram:—

"Gas masks urgently needed for defence Madrid. Do your best to organise supplies."

It was sent after a talk with Dr. Frankel, medical adviser to the International Brigade operating on the Madrid front.

The first indication that any gas was being used here was received when a man came in wounded yesterday, complaining of coughing, irritation of the membranes and of the nose.

The most serious case was badly afflicted with difficulty in respiration, and the faces of all of the men were covered over with a grey layer of some unspecified matter. Gas specialists were immediately rushed out from the War Ministry, and they diagnosed all of the cases as of gas poisoning, though not of a very grave kind.

GOING TO FIGHT FOR GOVERNMENT ?

ELEVEN ITALIANS ARRESTED

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

LEGHORN, Wednesday.

After an exciting chase at sea, three police motor boats overtook and arrested eleven Italians in a large motor fishing boat.

The men are held on suspicion that they are Communists, who were seeking to get to Spain to join the Government forces.

It is alleged that they were trying to leave the country without passports, while some of them are stated to be known to the police as "subversive characters."

They were brought back to Leghorn and detained.

IN SPANISH WATERS

Sir Samuel Hoare, in the House of Commons yesterday, told Mr. Bellenger (Labour) that his information was that the German naval forces now in Spanish waters were two cruisers and six destroyers, and the Italian one cruiser, one flotilla leader, and two destroyers.

MACHINE-GUN NEST BLOWN UP

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

BARCELONA, Wednesday.

Government forces have captured a new position in the neighbourhood of the lake in the Casa de Campo, according to reports from the Madrid front.

On the city side of the River Manzanares, it is stated, heavy fighting has taken place in the West Park, and at the Cases Velazquez, to the north of it, and the enemy defence is weaker.

A mine was sunk under the West Park, and the Clinico Hospital was blown up, silencing insurgent machine-guns, and causing many losses.

NO SOVIET WARSHIPS

It is officially and categorically denied in Moscow that the Soviet Union has asked permission for the passage of warships through the Dardanelles.

It is declared that Turkey's permission is not necessary under the Montreux Treaty, but that the Soviet Union has not any intention whatsoever of sending warships to the Mediterranean.

POSSIBILITY OF WAR

SOUTH AFRICA'S DEFENCES

SMUTS ON EXAMPLE OF ABYSSINIA

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

CAPE TOWN, Wednesday.

SPEAKING at Standerton, Transvaal, to-day, General Smuts, Minister of Justice, said that he did not believe there would be a war to-morrow or the next day, but it was evident that the nations must put their houses in order.

South Africa must rely on her powerful friend, Great Britain, to defend her shores, but she herself must undertake land and air defences to repulse any invader or air raider.

After a reference to South Africa's returning prosperity, General Smuts emphasised that there was a rapid growth abroad of a new spirit which they had thought buried in the shambles in which Europe had been left after the last war, and with new rearmament one could not be too certain of the position.

There was danger because the Union could not completely divorce herself from those countries which elected to travel in a path very dangerous for humanity.

"The big dogs are only barking, and do not like to fight one another," General Smuts continued. "Now and then they tackle small nations, as they did with Abyssinia, and swallow them up."

"We shall remember," said General Smuts, "that aeroplanes now fly 200 miles an hour for thousands of miles with loads of bombs. A force could be sent by air to-day which could cause as much devastation in South Africa as was being caused in Spain. The Government was keeping a watchful eye on all of this. It costs money to establish adequate defences, but fortunately we have got the money to-day.

"I hope," General Smuts concluded, "that the day is not far distant when this small people in South Africa will possess a certain amount of security."

RUDE MEN IN UNIFORM

R.M.'S COMMENT IN A DERRY CASE

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

LONDONDERRY, Wednesday.

"I don't like these cases where there is a clash between a constable and a respectable citizen, because the duty of this Court is to act scrupulously fairly between parties. I have heard constables speak to people in a manner they should not have done. I have been spoken to myself by constables in a peremptory and rude manner. This Court is not going to side with constable or civilian, but there is a mutual obligation to be polite."

These remarks were made by Mr. P. S. Bell, R.M., at Londonderry this afternoon, when he dismissed, on payment of costs, a case in which James Toland, Bonds Hill, Londonderry, was charged with parking an unlighted car on the wrong side of the street.

The constable said that when he spoke to the defendant the latter advised him not to report the matter. Toland, he said, asked for his name and number.

The defendant said that after the constable had asked him so many questions he thought he was entitled to ask his name. The constable declined to give his name, but gave his number. He had no intention of being discourteous, but thought it hard to be pulled up when the car was outside his own premises.

Mr. Bell said that no one had greater admiration for the police than he, but in a large body like the police force there must be rude men among them who, because they were wearing uniform, thought they could be rude. He was not referring to this case, but if anybody proved to that Court that he had been rudely treated he would get the protection of the Court.

THREE BROTHERS DETAINED

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

LONDONDERRY, Wednesday.

There was a development to-night in connection with the incident of last Saturday night, when Alderman W. J. Bradley was held up near his home in Miller street, Londonderry, assaulted by armed men, and robbed of £168, the property of the St. Columba Slate Club, of which he is secretary.

Three brothers, all dealers and farmers' sons, from the County Derry, were detained by the police in connection with the affair.

MOLLISON DOWN ?

NO NEWS OF 'PLANE

LONG OVERDUE AT CAPE TOWN

LAST SEEN 110 MILES FROM GOAL

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

CAPE TOWN, Wednesday (10 p.m.)

JAMES MOLLISON and his co-pilot, M. Corniglion-Molinier, have lost both the record and themselves, having strayed from their course when only about a hundred miles from their goal.

They should have reached Cape Town about 4 p.m. (G.M.T.), and when they passed over Beaufort West, 300 miles from Cape Town, at 12.50 to-day, they seemed to have every reasonable possibility of accomplishing their object.

At 2.15 (G.M.T.) the cry actually went round that they had arrived, but it turned out to be a false alarm, an instructional machine having been mistaken for the Dorothy. The weather was unfavourable, with slight rain and heavy clouds, unusual at this time of year.

OVER THE SEA

At 3.30 p.m. the lighthouse keeper at Cape Agulhas, the most southerly point of Africa, reported that he had sighted Mollison's 'plane flying low over the sea.

This meant that for 200 miles or so from Beaufort West he had been flying off his course, but he was only about 110 miles from Cape Town, and still had 26 minutes in reserve, with a 200 miles an hour 'plane.

Time went on, however, and nothing more was heard of him. Further telephone messages to the lighthouse keeper then revealed that after flying for about two miles over the sea Mollison had turned inland towards the missionary station of Elim, which is only a hamlet in a wide expanse of somewhat desolate scrub country, north of which lie formidable mountain ranges.

MUST BE DOWN

It is now believed that he must have come down somewhere. Telephone calls to all places along the route where he might have been seen have failed to bring in any news, and the possibility of sending out 'planes, and even a trawler, to search for the missing airmen, is now under consideration, but this will not now be possible until dawn to-morrow.

It is believed that Mollison lost his way owing to the thick clouds over the mountain ranges between Beaufort West and Cape Town.

OBJECTION TO HITLER'S WAY

DENUNCIATION OF WATERWAYS CONTROL

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

BELGRADE, Wednesday.

The German Minister here this afternoon called on M. Stoyadinovitch, the Yugoslav Premier, and discussed Germany's action in denouncing the waterways control provisions of the Treaty of Versailles.

M. Stoyadinovitch entered an objection to the way in which the German Government had acted, and declared that an international agreement could not be unilaterally denounced. He suggested that the same end could have been reached by negotiation.

The Premier added that Yugoslavia also had some time ago decided that international control of the Danube was no longer desirable.

International control is maintained on the Danube, at the iron gate and at the mouth of the river. A strong movement is now in progress in Yugoslavia and Rumania favouring abolition of the control, on the ground that it is unnecessary, and that the expense is crippling navigation.

DESTRUCTIVE GALWAY FIRE

CHURCH BUILT IN 1901 BURNED

DAMAGE ESTIMATED AT £10,000

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

GALWAY, Wednesday.

THE beautiful little Gothic church at Annaghdown, Co. Galway, was completely destroyed by fire on Tuesday night. Flames were seen issuing from the church at about 10 o'clock, and two hours later the roof had fallen and the building was a total ruin. Through the bravery of the Rev. A. Colgan, C.C., the altar vessels were saved from the flames.

When the outbreak was discovered the fire had got a strong grip on the church, and, fanned by a strong wind, the flames raced through the roof and seats and other inflammable material. The damage is estimated at between £8,000 and £10,000.

THE DISCOVERY

Shortly before 10 o'clock Patrick Duggan, Annaghdown, was motoring near the church when he saw the flames. He immediately went to the Guards' Station at Currandulla. He also notified the Rev. A. Colgan, C.C., whose residence stands in the church grounds. A telephone message was sent for the Galway Fire Brigade, and while awaiting the arrival of the firemen Father Colgan, Guards from Currandulla, and neighbours, endeavoured to save some of the church furniture and fittings. It was possible to remove only a number of seats near the main door.

Water was thrown on the little altar, the marble of which was cracking under the intense heat, and shielded by the efforts of those throwing the water Father Colgan reached the tabernacle and removed all the altar vessels.

GOOD WORK BY GUARDS

The Fire Brigade were considerably hampered in their work by the fact that they had to rely on neighbours to draw water to feed the hose.

Considerable assistance was given by Guards from Currandulla, under Sergeant Monahan, and Guards from Eglinton Street Station, Galway, under Chief Superintendent Macken and Superintendent Sean O Murchadha. Among those who attended from Galway were Sergeant Mangan, Sergeant Hanlon, Sergeant Morrissroe and Sergeant Keating.

It is not known how the fire originated The church was built in 1901, and was first opened for public worship on Christmas Day in that year. The cost of erection was about £8,000.

FIRE IN DUBLIN

WOODEN BUILDING DESTROYED

The premises once known as the Silver Slipper Night Club, now occupied by Modern Display Artists, Ltd., Dublin, was destroyed by fire yesterday. The building—a large wooden structure—lies at the end of a laneway off Harcourt street.

At about 1.30 in the afternoon smoke was seen issuing from an upstairs window, and within half an hour the interior of the first storey—paint-room, studio and office—was completely gutted. The Dublin Fire Brigade arrived on the scene a few minutes after the alarm had been raised, but the building burned like matchwood and they were powerless to save the upper portion. They did, however, prevent the fire from spreading, but while the flames did not actually reach the storeroom on the ground floor, most of the materials were destroyed by water.

The cause of the fire is unknown, as it occurred at a time when the employés of the firm had gone out to lunch.

In less than half an hour the upper storey was completely burnt out, and the Fire Brigade left shortly after two o'clock.

From about 1929 the gutted premises were run as the Studio Arts Club by Madame Cogley, and it was in the room on the ground floor that many of the plans for the Gate Theatre project were first made. They were also used for the first rehearsals of the Gate Theatre Company, of which Madame Cogley, Mr. Gearoid O Loughlin, Mr. Hilton Edwards, and Mr. Micheal MacLiammoir were the original directors. A feature of the building was the ballroom on the second storey, the walls of which were decorated with drawings of well-known Irish persons by Mr. Harry Kernoff, R.H.A., and other Dublin artists.

After the departure of Madame Cogley for London the premises were used by the Silver Slipper Club, and later by the Silker Key Club.

THE KING SEES MR. BALDWIN

SIR JOHN SIMON VISITS NO. 10

PREMIER'S CHAT WITH MINISTERS

THE King received in audience at Buckingham Palace yesterday Mr. Stanley Baldwin, the Prime Minister.

Mr. Baldwin drove to the Palace from Downing street just before six o'clock, and was immediately shown to the King's private apartments.

This is the second audience which the King has granted to the Prime Minister within a week. The Premier was at the Palace last Wednesday.

Mr. Baldwin remained with the King for just over an hour, afterwards driving from Buckingham Palace to Downing street.

Earlier yesterday the Premier had presided over the weekly meeting of the Cabinet at No. 10 Downing street.

Shortly after Mr. Baldwin returned from Buckingham Palace Sir John Simon, the Home Secretary, drove up and entered No. 10 Downing street.

He stayed there for some time, and then left alone in a car, followed shortly afterwards by Mr. Baldwin.

TALK WITH CABINET MINISTERS

The Press Association learns that at a late hour on Tuesday night Mr. Baldwin had a consultation with some Cabinet Ministers in his private room at the House of Commons.

Their talk lasted about an hour, and although it did not constitute a Cabinet meeting, it is believed to have been a discussion of some importance.

Few people were aware that it was going on.

There was a good deal of conjecture in the Parliamentary Lobby last night, but it was assumed that the meeting was of some urgency, as the full Cabinet meeting was to be held yesterday morning—some twelve hours after the consultation at the house.

Interest was heightened when it became known that the Prime Minister last evening spent an hour in audience with the King and that afterwards the Premier and Sir John Simon were in consultation together.

"THE KING AND THE EMPIRE"

MATTER OF HIGHEST IMPORTANCE

The Daily Telegraph, in a leader headed "The King and the Empire," states:—

"It is understood that at yesterday's meeting of the Cabinet discussion arose on a matter of the highest constitutional importance, of a nature to which nothing even remotely resembling a parallel has occurred in recent times. It concerned relations of Ministers with the Sovereign, not on any question of politics or of industrial affairs, but on the personal position of the King himself. . . . .

"The King's private affairs, like those of any one of his subjects, are his own. But there are aspects in which the private affairs of a constitutional sovereign assume first-rate public importance, and cannot be dissociated from his public position. . . .

"Deeply as we regret the necessity of alluding to such a theme, it is impossible to be silent in view of certain observations made by the Bishop of Bradford on Tuesday, when he deemed it his duty to address words of stern and pointed reproof to the King, which were bound, whether it was intended or not, to raise an issue.

"The issue is, in fact, being raised in the quarter where it is most appropriate that it should be raised—namely, by the Prime Minister in private audience with His Majesty. Mr. Baldwin, as First Minister, is the proper person to lay before the King the considerations which he and his colleagues, as representing His Majesty's most loyal subjects, feel should be brought without delay to the point of a crucial decision.

"That the King will choose aright we cannot doubt and by choosing aright we mean that he will determine upon a course of action which will be consonant with his own personal dignity and with "the honour, safety and welfare" of the Crown, the Kingdom and the Dominions.

"The King will not choose for himself alone; he will be choosing for the Monarchy and for the British Empire. For the Crown, it must not be forgotten, is now the sole visible link of Empire, and as no one knows better than the King what that Empire stands for or has appreciated more deeply the ever-swelling volume of the affection and the loyalty of its peoples, it cannot be supposed that he will hesitate to put those august and permanent interests before personal feelings, which, however deeply they may concern his own happiness, are in that respect strictly private and not national or imperial.

"It is painful to write thus of one who, during the short time that he has been King, has never failed in any of the duties of kingship or of service to all classes of his people. There is no one who does not wish him well. That thought alone should strengthen him to a determination to do nothing which would impair his dignity or harm the realm.

GOSSIP IN AMERICA

The Morning Post, under the heading "King and People," says:—

"For some time past, as, no doubt, many of our readers know, much gossip and rumour about the Monarchy has been given currency in foreign newspapers, and especially in those of America. Within the last twenty-four hours veiled comment on the subject of all this rumour has been made by a group of provincial newspapers in this country—all of them taking as their text an address by the Bishop of Bradford on the Coronation Service. The bishop, in a statement printed elsewhere, declared that these newspapers misunderstood him. But the fact remains that only one interpretation was placed on the bishop's remarks by the majority of those who read them, and the bishop has thus unwittingly raised a ghost which will not easily be laid.

"We believe that we shall be speaking for millions of loyal and devoted subjects of the King when we say that we shrink from believing that there is solid foundation for the gossip and rumour now current both at home and abroad. . . .

"We fully sympathise with the difficulties, personal and political, by which this delicate situation is hedged about, and we recognise the necessity for circumspection. But we are convinced that th[e] most serious harm must come to all [who] has most claim to protection if suc[h] statements abroad and such di[illegible] rumours at home are able to cir[culate] refuted any longer."

A PERSONAL ISSUE

The Sheffield Telegraph:—His Majesty the King, it has been learned, has differed from his Ministers on a personal issue. It is most profoundly to be regretted that such a difference should have arisen. His Majesty, before his accession to the Throne, had won the admiration and affection of his people to a supreme degree. Under his sovereignty, as under his late father's, the Crown has been the one bond that has linked the scattered nations of the Empire in a steadfast unity. It is distressing to think that any impediment should mar the progress of a reign so auspiciously begun.

The Sheffield Independent:—The Throne and people are indivisible, and at a time when the forces of unrest and discontent are powerful it is more essential than ever that the rock-like solidarity of the British Monarchy should stand in the world as a bulwark of hope, re-assurance and progress for the nation and for the Empire.

ELECTRICITY IN THE FREE STATE

IMPORTANCE OF SHANNON SCHEME

INDUSTRY'S DEPENDENCE ON THE CURRENT

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

GALWAY, Wednesday.

ADDRESSING the Galway Chamber of Commerce to-night, Mr. T. J. W. Kenny, President, presiding, on the electrical development in the Free State, Dr. T. A. McLaughlin, Technical Director, Electricity Supply Board, said that one of the most astonishing things about the Saorstat was the extraordinary rapid economic advance that had been made in every direction of national economic life over the past decade, and another most astonishing fact was how little citizens appreciated this advance.

Galway City had the distinction of being one of the pioneers of public electricity supply in these countries. The local company started a supply as far back at July, 1889. The electrical development which was possible in the city with the local generating station was of a restricted nature, and in no way comparable to the development which the Shannon Scheme, operating on a national scale, made possible.

INTERESTING COMPARISONS

In 1924 the total consumption of electricity in Galway City amounted to 312,000 units, and in 1934, with five years of the Shannon supply, the consumption of the city increased to 2,041,000 units, or an increase of some 430 per cent. over the period.

In 1924 the local industries of Galway City purchased 45,000 units of electricity for motive power purposes, and in 1935 the consumption had risen to 757,000 units. In 1924 the use of electricity for street lighting amounted to 45,000 units, and in 1934 had increased to 250,000 units. While the increase in consumption was 430 per cent. the revenue increase was only 75 per cent.

THE SHANNON SUPPLY

Dr. McLaughlin said the increased use of electricity was an important factor in the li… of the people, and the future of the economic structure of the State.

"Take the economic structure of the country as it exists to-day," he said, "and think of it for one moment with the Shannon scheme closed down. Practically every industry in the country would be at a standstill, practically every person employed in industry would be standing idle, the cities and towns would be in darkness, business as we know it would be practically suspended throughout the whole country. Momentary considerations of the confusion which would exist will make you appreciate why those responsible for the electricity supply are so extraordinarily careful and give so much thought to the maintenance of a safe and secure supply throughout the country. We are careful about the maintenance of steam stand-by plant. The results of any shut down in the economic life of the country would be so serious that no risks whatever can be taken in the security of supply, and you may be certain that those responsible do not take any risks."

MODERN INDUSTRY

Electricity was the motive power of all modern industry, and there was no other motive power that could economically replace it. That was why all the new industries in the Saorstat automatically turned to electricity for power purposes. One of the most striking factors about modern industry was that the workers had practically ceased to work with their hands. They had become instead the superintendents of machinery which did the actual work. This change has been brought about by two considerations—one, the desire to lessen human labour, and the other to cheapen production. The desire to lessen human labour had its urge in the natural desire of the people to live what would be styled more civilised lives, to use their minds rather than their muscles, and to get as far away as possible from the stage in which man was more or less a beast of burden. In industry this stage was well advanced. The physical health and length of life enjoyed by industrial workers to-day was much better than it was fifty years ago.

If they turned from the factory to the home, they found exactly the same development proceeding. Every housewife knew how hard it was to-day to get domestic servants. The girls were trooping into the factories where they had the eight-hour day. There was only one solution to the problem of the working of the modern house, and that was the mechanisation, as far as possible, of the major physical tasks of running a home by the use of electricity.

THE RURAL AREAS

Referring to the rural areas, he said that people were flocking from them into the cities and towns for one reason only—because life was easier in the cities and towns. In industry, as opposed to agriculture, there was not so much hard work to-day. The women folk in the cities and towns had not to work as hard as their sisters in the rural areas. They had light at the touch of a switch.

The problem of supplying electricity in rural areas, he said, is a very difficult, economic one, and nobody is going to make any fortune out of it owing to the scattered nature of the farms; but it is a problem which will have to be tackled over the next decade, and, as the towns and cities are supplied, it is one which will every day engage more and more the attention of those responsible for the national electricity undertaking.

ELECTRICITY CHARGES

Proposing a vote of thanks to Dr. McLaughlin, Mr. M. J. Kennedy, County Surveyor, criticised the electricity charges imposed by the Electricity Supply Board. The Irish Free State was a country struggling to get on, and a big impetus could be given to its progress by cheaper electricity. There were many factories and mills in Galway using antiquated power machines, with a resultant loss of energy and time because of the high cost of electrical energy. He had personally paid from nine to ten pounds per annum to the old Galway Electrical Board. He was now paying twenty pounds a year to the E.S.B. for a poorer service.

Seconding the vote of thanks, Professor Rishworth, University College, Galway, said that, generally speaking, the Shannon scheme had been a success. The charges were not high, and the light was good.

Professor Liam O'Briain, the Rev. Professor Fahy, D.D., and Mr. Thomas Egan also spoke to the resolution, which was put by Mr. T. J. W. Kenny.

BRITISH TRAWLER LOST

TEN DIE WHEN GERMAN STEAMER FOUNDERS

NINE of the crew of ten of the Yarmouth trawler Girl Norah, which went ashore during Tuesday night on the treacherous coast east of Calais, are believed to have been drowned, says a Reuter telegram from Calais. The only survivor is Seaman Samuel Bradey.

When the Girl Norah went aground at the spot known as "Les Hemmes de Marck" the crew lit flares and sounded a siren, but their signals were not noticed.

As the tide rose great waves began to wash over the trawler's deck. Six of the crew with lifebelts tried to reach the shore, but were all drowned.

The four others continued their signals and calls for help, but when dawn broke only Bradey was still holding on to the vessel. His companions had been swept away.

Finally a fisherman of Hemmes, Auguste Benard, heard his desperate cries, waded breast-high into the breakers, and threw a line which Bradey managed to seize. Benard dragged Bradey to safety, then took him, utterly exhausted, to his home.

The German steamer Elsa of Rostock foundered off Borkum, on the north-west coast bordering on Holland, during the seventy miles an hour gale which raged all along this coast on Tuesday night. Ten members of the crew of twelve were drowned, only two being rescued by another German steamer.

A Dutch fishing vessel was stranded off the lighthouse on the island of Nordeney, but the crew were rescued by a German lifeboat.

FORTY-HOUR WEEK FOR PRINTERS

A DEADLOCK AT GENEVA

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

GENEVA, Wednesday.

The employers' delegates, with the exception of the U.S. delegate, to-day refused further collaboration with the preparatory tripartite meeting here to examine general conditions in the printing and kindred trades. They are not, however, withdrawing from the meeting. The purpose of the meeting, which opened at the International Labour Office on Monday, is to prepare the grounds for a conference next year to consider the introduction of a forty-hour week.

SUNDAY WORK ON RUSSIAN VESSEL

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

CORK, Wednesday.

At a meeting of the Cork Harbour Board yesterday, Mr. R. Wallace said that a steamer recently arrived from Leningrad or Archangel.

The chairman (Mr. S. Fitzgerald) inquired if Mr. Wallace's complaint was in respect to working on Sundays on the vessel.

Mr. Wallace replied: "Yes," and the Chairman said that the matter should be raised by notice of motion.

Mr. Wallace, pressing for an immediate discussion, said that the whole Christian City of Cork must be made aware of the facts. The crew worked every Sunday, scraping, painting and pitching. The Chairman, he said, was closuring a matter of importance to the interests of the Catholics of Cork.

The Chairman said that he was merely indicating the correct procedure. Mr. Wallace could raise the matter by notice of motion at the next meeting, and, in fact, he hoped Mr. Wallace would do so.

BISHOP AND THE KING

STATEMENT BY DR. BLUNT

ADDRESS NOT INTENDED AS REBUKE

A DENIAL that references to the King in his address to the Bradford Diocesan Conference on Tuesday were in the least intended as a rebuke was made to a Press Association reporter in Manchester last night by the Bishop of Bradford, Dr. A. W. F. Blunt.

After reading newspaper comments on his speech, he said: "These people make a good deal more of the thing than they have any right to do. There was only one phrase in the whole of what I said that could be considered as a criticism of the King. That was when I said, 'Some of us wish that he gave more positive signs of his awareness.'

"What I made reference to was the fact that, to all outward appearance, the King seems to live entirely indifferent to the public practice of religion. He may have a private religion of his own. That I know nothing about, but he does not show the world he has got one, and I think that is a pity.

"A good many people would like him to show more sign of a belief in the value of religion than he does.

"With regard to these rumours that have been going about about him, I may as well say that my address was written six weeks before I first heard anything of them. It had nothing whatsoever to do with them. I did not know of them; I did not know of their existence. I had never heard of them. I studiously took care to say nothing in regard to the King's private life, because I know nothing about it. I was merely commenting on the absence of outward concern for religion which shows itself in his daily life."

THE CORONATION

The Bishop said that his references were not in the least intended to be a rebuke to the King.

"In the last few months," he added, "half a dozen people at least in different places have said to me, 'the Coronation ceremony will be a sham, because the King does not care anything for religion.' It seemed to me a most unfortunate thing for people to be thinking that, and that was why I said what I did."

BISHOP'S CAREER

Dr. A. W. F. Blunt, Bishop of Bradford since 1931, is aged 57. Dr. Blunt, who was at Oxford University, was an Assistant Master at Wellington College before entering the Church, in 1904.

First a curate, and then as Vicar, he was at Carrington (Notts) until 1917, and then went to St. Werburgh's, Derby, where he remained until he went to Bradford. For most of the time he was Rural Dean of Derby.

He has written several important theological works, including one on "Faith and the New Testament." He is an honorary D.D. of Oxford.

His father was Chief Civil Commissioner for the Seychelles.

DISTRIBUTION OF LEAFLETS

ACCUSED MAN SENTENCED

John Henry Corr, stated to be an Englishman, was, at Clane Court on Tuesday, bound over in his surety of £50 to be of good behaviour, and keep the peace for twelve months, on a charge of being guilty of conduct likely to lead to a breach of the peace.

Defendant refused to give the undertaking, and was sentenced to two months' imprisonment.

Superintendent McNeill, who prosecuted, said that the case was similar to one which had been disposed of at the Naas Court and in which the defendant had been sentenced to two months' imprisonment. The present defendant, aware of the decision of that Court, and in defiance of the order, came down to Naas and proceeded to distribute further leaflets of an anti-Catholic nature.

Sergeant Hughes, Ballitore, stated that as a result of the distribution of these leaflets a breach of the peace had been committed when thirty-five men from Castledermot had accosted a comrade of defendant and burned a large quantity of literature.

Defendant, giving evidence, said that he was a member of the Bible Tract Society, with their principal headquarters in Brooklyn, New York. They had branches in over thirty countries, but not in Russia. He did not support Russia, because its doctrines of Communism were based on bloodshed.

LEAGUE FOR SOCIAL JUSTICE

THE MAIN CAUSE OF IRISH ECONOMIC ILLS

The principles of social justice laid down in the Papal Encyclicals were the guiding line of the League for Social Justice, said Mr. H. O'Neill, Chairman of the National Executive of the League, at a meeting in Wynn's Hotel, Dublin, last night.

Mr. M. J. Keating, barrister-at-law, national secretary, said that unemployment was the main cause of most of Irish economic ills. If all the urgently necessary work, such as slum clearance, road-making, and drainage were undertaken, it would be found that they were short of man power. They were told that for this there was no available money, but the League proposed that the money be made available through an economic development commission, financed by the Currency Commission from credits created for the purpose. Their proposals went no farther than to restore to the central authority a means of controlling the volume of the national money, and the ability to safeguard the people from financial domination, foreign or domestic. These proposals would enable all to own property; the farmer, producer, shopkeeper, and professional man would benefit, and the worker would know a prosperity and security never before enjoyed by him.

A discussion followed the address of Mr. Keating, and new members of the League were enrolled.

BY AIR TO THE UNITED STATES

PARIS, Wednesday.

M. Cot, French Air Minister, outlining plans for a Transatlantic air service between France and the United States, before the Air Commission of the French Chamber to-day, stated that the estimated cost of the service was 60,000,000 francs.

International agreements would be reached so that the service did not clash with those of other Powers, and that mail would be carried next year or the year after. Two routes were under consideration—one via the Azores Islands, and the other, a summer route, via the Island of St. Pierre, off Newfoundland.

NEW FELLOWS OF R.I.A.M.

NAMES OF NOTE IN MUSIC

SEVEN Honorary Fellowships of the Royal Irish Academy of Music were conferred at a musical "At Home," held in the Royal Hibernian Hotel, Dublin, last night. There was a large and distinguished attendance, and a musical recital was given by Mr. Claud Biggs (pianoforte), who played works by Scarlatti, Bach, Mendelssohn, Beethoven and Chopin; Mr. Patrick Kirwan (tenor) and Miss Kathleen Moore (soprano).

Mr. T. Derrig, Minister for Education, who was to have presented the diplomas, failed to arrive, and, after waiting for about an hour, it was decided to proceed with the programme. Later it was learned by telephone that the Minister was about to leave home, but at half-past ten o'clock he was still absent, and it was decided to make the presentations.

The diplomas were, therefore, presented by Mrs. W. J. M. Starkie, the senior Governor present, the recipients being Miss Margaret O'Hea (in absentia), Mr. B. Warburton Rooke, Mus.B.; Dr. Vincent O'Brien, Maestro Adelio Viani (in absentia), Mrs. Madeline Larchet, Miss Annie Lord (in absentia), and Mr. Thomas Heaving.

RECORDS OF NEW FELLOWS

Mr. Sealy Jeffares, in the course of a short address, gave the following particulars of the new Fellows:—

MISS MARGARET O'HEA is one of the most distinguished teachers of the piano that this country has ever produced. Her connection with the Academy covers the whole of Signor Esposito's career, and her name will always be associated with his in the building up of Dublin's school of pianoforte playing. Her pupils are legion, and will remain for many years as a monument to her genius for imparting knowledge.

MR. B. WARBURTON ROOKE, Mus. B., entered the Academy as a boy, and his whole career has been centred in it. First as a pupil, and afterwards as successor to Sir Robert Stewart, he is a living link in the tradition handed down from his great teacher, and it would be impossible to imagine anyone more loyal or devoted to his chosen subject and to the Academy, to which he has given his life for so many years.

DR. VINCENT O'BRIEN, Mus.D., as a boy, was a student of the Academy, and also studied under Sir Robert Stewart. It is not necessary to remind anyone present of his distinguished career, and his services to music in Dublin. His name will always be associated with the Palestrina Choir in the Pro-Cathedral the Dublin Oratorio Society, the Dublin Broadcasting Station, of which he has been Musical Director since its inception, and last, but not least, his great pupil, John MacCormack. A few years ago the National University conferred on him the degree of Doctor of Music honoris causa for his work as Director of Music at the Eucharistic Congress.

MAESTRO ADELIO VIANI has been for many years our Senior Professor of Singing. He came to us from the Milan Conservatory, with its highest credentials. In addition to his academic work he founded the Dublin Operatic Society, of which he has been conductor for the past seven years.

MRS. MADELEINE LARCHET is one of the most distinguished pupils of the Academy. As Madeleine Moore she was well known on the concert platform, both as violinist and pianist. To her contemporaries she was distinguished for her work in chamber music, especially in the Norah Thompson quartet and the Irish Ladies' Quartet. She was also an outstanding all-round accompanist, and especially for stringed instruments. To the younger generation she is better known for her work as a teacher.

MISS ANNIE LORD, the most distinguished pupil of Miss Margaret O'Hea and Signor Esposito, was for some years our leading piano recitalist. She appeared regularly at the Royal Dublin Society, where she first introduced to Dublin the work of such composers as Cesar Franck, Debussy and Ravel. Since retiring from the concert platform she has devoted her entire energy to teaching, in which she has been eminently successful, and has brought great honour to the Academy. She must be acknowledged …ally great authority on modern piano…

MR. THOMAS H. WEAV… Academy as a boy, and had … distinguished career as a st… … teaching … in the Chapel Royal, and afterwards in Christ Church Cathedral. He was conductor of the Æolian Choral Society in its lifetime, when he introduced to Dublin many works, notably Verdi's Requiem. He has been for many years conductor of the Rathmines and Rathgar Operatic Society. He enjoys a wide reputation as organ recitalist, accompanist and teacher.

DRESSES AT RECEPTION

Mrs. W. J. M. Starkie was among the Governors present. She wore a handsome black taffeta gown embroidered with silver beading, and a short black velvet coatee trimmed with grey. Another Governor, Mrs. William O'Hara, came in a black georgette and lace frock. White satin and a black velvet coatee, with red flowers were chosen by Mrs. Frank McDonnell, and the Lady Superintendent, Miss May McGeeney, B.A., N.U.I., wore an uncommon blue brocade coatee over her black frock. Mrs. Boxwell kept on her evening cloak during the evening, while Mrs. I. Coyle, who arrived early with her husband, also wore her fur coat most of the time over her beautiful laquered satin gown. A green velvet frock, cut on slim fitting lines, with a loose neck and angel sleeves, was worn by Mrs. Oulton, and a pretty black and gold dress by Mrs. Sidford Fannin.

The guests included:—Mr. J. F. Larchet, Mus.D., F.R.I.A.M.; Mrs. W. J. M. Starkie, Mrs. Frank McDonnell, Mrs William O'Hara, Mrs Sidford Fannin, Mr. George Prescott, A.M.I.E.E.; Mr. T. S. C. ## WELCOME TO MINISTER

MR. AIKEN PRAISES BOXING

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

KELLS, Wednesday.

Mr. F. Aiken, Minister for Defence, was presented with an address of welcome by the Kells Urban Council when he visited the town to-night on the occasion of a boxing tournament, held under the auspices of the local Sluagh of the Volunteers.

On arrival he was met by Mr. Thomas Flood, chairman of the Sluagh Committee, and members of the Urban Council.

The address, which was read by Mr. P. Connell, Town Clerk, stated: "The history of the new Ireland which you helped to make will, when it comes to be written, bear eloquent testimony to your service. In that regard we may, however, be permitted to say that we recognise and regard you as a soldier worthy in every way of the great cause you served; a Cabinet Minister who is not alone concerned for the well-being and efficiency of the service under your immediate charge, but also, as your presence here to-night testifies, as one deeply interested in the athletic progress and physical development of our rising generation; and lastly, as a distinguished Irish citizen to whom it is our privilege and pleasure to extend a welcome."

Mr. Aiken, who replied briefly, said that he hoped the young men of the district would be encouraged to take up the art of boxing. He considered that it was a good thing for the young men to learn to box and to keep as physically fit as would be … to stand for three or fou… …

THE LIVE-STOCK INDUSTRY

MR. MORRISON'S STATEMENT

FROM OUR PARLIAMENTARY CORRESPONDENT.

WESTMINSTER, Wednesday.

IN the House of Commons to-day, Mr. H. G. Williams (Conservative) called attention to the state of the live stock industry, and moved "That this House urges the Government to take immediate and effective measures with relation to the live stock industry in order to restore that balance in agriculture which is essential if it is to make its full contributions to the nation's food supply in time of peace and war, and to assure a better standard of life to all engaged in the industry." He said that until prosperity was restored to agriculture we should never solve the problem of urban unemployment. Britain was a bigger market for agricultural produce than the whole of Asia and Africa put together, yet the Government had signed a new Trade Agreement with the Argentine, which meant that thousands of workers would be driven off the land in this country. Then, as a result of the Ottawa Agreement, the Dominions had been given an expanding share of the British market. He suggested that to balance matters a halfpenny per lb. should be imposed on Empire beef and a penny-farthing on Argentine beef. The livestock industry, he said, had not had a square deal.

Mr. R. T. D. Acland (Liberal) moved as an amendment to add at the end of the motion the words "and hopes that the Government's policy will be based upon the improvement of the quality of the products of the industry, the reduction in the cost of production and distribution, and the stimulation of demand."

Mr. W. S. Morrison (Minister of Agriculture) said that both the motion and the amendment were in accord with the policy of the Government. It was not fair to judge the state of agriculture from the point of view of prices. There had been a heavy seasonable decline in live-stock prices, due to many causes. He believed that the tide had now turned and that prices would continue to harden. In the forthcoming Live-stock Bill several aspects of the problem would be dealt with, and effect would be given to some of the views which had been expressed. One of their proposals would be a World Meat Conference, where producers would be able to consider the situation and take steps among themselves to arrange to maintain supplies at reasonable levels.

The motion, with the addition of Mr. Acland's amendment, was agreed to without a division.

ANGLO-ARGENTINE TRADE PACT

SHIPMENTS TO BE REDUCED

Under the new Anglo-Argentine trade agreement, which was signed last Tuesday and published as a White Paper last night, the Argentine agrees to the imposition of duties on her beef; agrees, in the event of the regulation of imports into the United Kingdom, to reductions in her shipments of chilled beef—her most important export to Britain—and undertakes to maintain all tariff concessions accorded to United Kingdom goods in the 1933 agreement, which expired on November 20.

The new agreement will remain in force until the end of 1939, and thence will be terminable at six months' notice.

The United Kingdom undertakes that the duties will not exceed three-farthings per pound on chilled beef; two-thirds of a penny per pound on frozen beef; and twenty per cent. ad valorem on other beef.

Mutton, lamb, and pork will remain duty free.

BUT WHAT OF THE FUTURE?

Many a husband spares his wife no comfort he can possibly afford. Yet he shirks frankly putting to himself a natural question: a crisis—and what? How would she manage with the bread-winner gone? Care—consideration—in the present tense is only half his duty done if he isn't making adequate provision for his wife's future comfort—complete independence. ● Now, the best way to do this is through a Canada Life endowment policy. This will give him the satisfaction of ensuring, at his death, the maximum security for his dependents for what he can afford to pay in yearly premiums. ● Wouldn't you be the happier for settling this all-important question once for all? The trouble it will take is out of all proportion to the peace of mind that knowing all's well with the future will give you. ● Need we say that filling up and sending us the coupon below will commit you to nothing?

THE MALTING INDUSTRY

FREE STATE RETURNS

Preliminary returns for the malting industry in 1935 indicate that the total value of goods made for sale, and of work done, was £374,396 as against £365,205 in 1934. Malt made for sale, or stock, and malt made on commission in 1935, totalled 669,090 cwt. as against 658,462 cwt. in 1934. The net value of the output was £191,586 compared with £192,700 in 1934.

There were 900 persons engaged in the industry in 1935 as against 868 in 1934, the office and technical staff totalling 113, while the wage-earners numbered 900, or 32 more than in 1934. Wages paid increased from £66,366 to £68,170 in 1935.

Including malt made by brewers and distillers, the total quantity of malt made in the Irish Free State in 1935 was 962,526 cwts., as against 66,366 cwts. in 1934.

FISHERY RATE OF 15/-

CORMORANTS IN LIFFEY

That cormorants are the greatest poachers in the River Liffey, taking trout and small fish in large quantities, was a report made to the Dublin Conservators of Fisheries at their meeting yesterday at Grafton street, Dublin.

The Minister for Finance wrote with reference to the Liffey Reservoir Bill, 1936, stating that he could not see how the interests of Ringsend fishermen would be detrimentally affected under the provisions of the bill.

The secretary, Mr. B. J. Newcombe, said that the Minister seemed to overlook the fact that sufficient water was necessary to permit salmon and trout to go up the river to spawn. The Abbey fishermen at Limerick had been compensated to the extent of £40,000, and the Ringsend fishermen's case was analogous.

A fishery rate of 15s. in the pound was struck for the coming year.

MORE IRISH BACON

PIG SALES INCREASED

While there have been large increases in the number of pigs bought for curing by Irish bacon curers during the 48 weeks ended November 28 last, exports of live pigs by sea have declined. The net result has been a sale of 1,763,128 pigs for bacon curing and export during the period mentioned, or 129,902 more than for the corresponding period last year.

Returns for the Irish Free State show that 962,664 live and 57,520 dead pigs were bought by Irish bacon curers during the 48 weeks, as against 915,758 live and 68,941 dead in 1935; while the number shipped alive was 96,534 as compared with 102,895.

In Northern Ireland, the number bought for curing was 602,995 against 467,702 in 1935, while the number of live pigs shipped was 43,415 against 77,930.

'PLANE WITHOUT A PILOT

FLIES TILL PETROL IS EXHAUSTED

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

BOURGES, Wednesday.

A pilotless monoplane, with a 180 h.p. engine, to-day remained in the air for an hour and a quarter, until all its petrol was exhausted, and then crashed in a wood at Chateau d'Allier, Central France.

A youth of 20, completing his air training, got caught in dense clouds, and decided to drop from his machine in a parachute. He reached the ground safely, and his deserted machine righted itself, and then, caught by a current of wind, flew eastwards towards the town of Nevers, and then south towards Chateau d'Allier, where it crashed at a spot 30 miles away from the point where the flight started.

PRISON POPULATIONS

IRISH FREE STATE HAS THE LOWEST

The Irish Free State has the lowest prison population of any country in Europe, according to rough figures of the world's prison population, which have been obtained by the Howard League for Penal Reform. These figures, which, she stressed, should not be regarded as completely accurate, were quoted by Miss Margery Fry, speaking at a luncheon of the League yesterday.

They showed that per one hundred thousand of the population, the prison population in various countries was:—Irish Free State, 18.4; England and Wales, 29.9; Scotland, 26.7; Northern Ireland, 30.9; Sweden, 38.5; Germany, 157—not including, she thought, those in concentration camps—and Italy 126.

GOSSIP FROM THE COURSE

MORSE CODE'S SUCCESS

Loyal Prince Wins Kingsclere 'Chase : Some Casualties

FROM OUR TRAVELLING CORRESPONDENT.

NEWBURY, Wednesday Night.

IT would appear that Ivor Anthony has the pick of the younger generation of steeplechasers with such as Royal Mail, Drinmore Lad, and Morse Code in the Wroughton stable. The first-named two have already shown their prowess at Liverpool—Royal Mail by beating Golden Miller in the Becher, and Drinmore Lad by winning the Valentine.

It was the turn to-day of Morse Code, who won the Open Steeplechase, for which he started a slightly better favourite than Airgead Sios and Luckpenny. The winner is a seven-year-old, of whom the greatest expectations were entertained a couple of seasons ago, and who is now probably better than he has ever been.

It was an interesting field here that included Battleship, an American horse, who has in his own country won a race that is called the American Grand National, but has very little in common with the contest at Aintree.

However, he was thought good enough to be sent to England by Mrs. Marion Scott to get him acclimatised to run at Liverpool in March. There was no great fancy for his chance here, and the object of his jockey, Mr. B. Hobbs, son of his trainer, Reginald Hobbs, was apparently to get him round safely after giving him every opportunity to see his fences.

Finished Fourth

This he did efficiently, and he finished fourth, which, in the circumstances, could be called a good performance. It was far better, indeed, than the efforts of another horse, Trouble Maker, that his owner sent here a few years ago.

Airgead Sios, as usual, went off in front, but he was losing ground after turning into the straight, where Luckpenny had taken the lead from him. At the last fence Morse Code joined Luckpenny, and then, showing the better speed on the flat, beat W. Payne's charge by three lengths; Airgead Sios being given third place, six lengths away.

Oranstown was weighed out for, but was withdrawn from, the race, G. Wilson taking him back to the paddock. Harman and Rooney were pulled up. Morse Code seems to stay well, and one can easily see him becoming a fancied candidate for the Grand National.

Three Joint-Favourites

There was wonderful betting over the Kingsclere Steeplechase, no fewer than three horses—The Bear, Novgorod and Twelfth Night—being joint favourites at 7 to 1. Then there was one at 8 to 1, Don Bosco, and three more at 10's, Mollison, Corn Law and Bineham.

The Bear was sold after winning a selling race on the flat for Captain Boyd-Rochfort to Gilbert Bennett, but he has not been as lucky as some of the cheaper purchases that trainer has made. Here he came down at a fence before turning into the straight, and then jumped the rails and crashed through another set before he was caught.

Casualties were numerous in this race; for Gay Battler fell at the first fence, then Corn Law came down at the water, and soon after Mollison went down.

Novgorod was then left in front, but Loyal Prince took the lead from him between the last two fences, and beat him by six lengths, Captain Derby Rogers's Samoht finishing third and St. Christopher fourth. Novgorod, who is thought to be about the most promising of the four year olds of the season, did not jump as well as usual, but then they were going very fast for him.

The winner is a six-year-old by My Prince, trained by George Beeby for Mr. Arthur Smith-Bingham, that has come from the hurdling class and showed much promise here.

One begins almost to despair of Royal Ransom. He started favourite for the Berks Handicap Hurdle with Corona-Corona, second favourite, but he was never in the hunt, and Henri's Choice, after making all the running, won in a trot by six lengths and a neck from Wellmet and Corona-Corona.

A Veterinary Triumph

Henri's Choice, who is popularly credited with having "broken his neck" at Liverpool—which he did not do—has clearly found his best form again. This was his first win since he damaged the vertebrae of his neck, and the fact that he is able to run is a triumph for veterinary science.

Negrier, a French horse that was brought from France by Mr. Arthur Sainsbury after putting up some useful performances, has been running most of the season on the flat without success. He had his first win in England to-day, when he took the Hants Hurdle Race by two lengths from Manteau Royal.

The latter is also a French importation who was bought by Mr. Whitelaw in the summer, and, as he had been well galloped, and three-year-olds are so greatly favoured by the scale of weights at this time of the year, he was favoured; but Negrier, after taking the lead at half-way, was easily too good for him.

Not Fast Enough

Among the runners for this race was the ten-year-old Irish mare, Pucka Belle, that had won the National Hunt Steeplechase at Cheltenham last March. She could not run fast enough to be dangerous.

I do not keep a horses' birthday book, so cannot tell which is the oldest steeplechaser in training, but Camp Bed is fifteen, and that is something to be going on with. Furthermore, the veteran was an easy winner of the Findon Selling Handicap, a steeplechase, in which he beat Ballinavulla by three lengths. He was then bought back into Captain Powell's stable for 75 guineas.

In view of the size of the other fields, it was a little surprising to find only six runners for the Three-year-old Juvenile Selling Hurdle, which Sun Up won for Mr. H. R. Lawrence by two lengths from St. Bernard.

The racing will be continued here to-morrow, when the principal steeplechase is the Cranborne Handicap. Here BRIENZ is top weight, and as he has shown himself to be in form this season is likely to win, the danger to him being Sea Rover, who did so well at Liverpool.

TOUGH GUY is a likely winner of the Newbury Juvenile Maiden Hurdle, and the best in the Andover Handicap Steeplechase may be HEAVY.

GALTEE MORE.

TUSCUS SHOULD SCORE

Golden Miller Expected to Win Andover 'Chase

FIVE of the six horses who won the corresponding events last season are engaged again at Newbury to-day. In addition, the re-appearance of the most discussed 'chaser of recent years, Golden Miller, should ensure a fine afternoon's entertainment. As far as monetary value is concerned, chief interest will centre in the Juvenile Maiden Hurdle. This has attracted Bibury and Tuscus, both of whom have won races.

I slightly prefer the chance of Tuscus, and hope to see him successful. He had several of those he will meet here behind him when he finished third to Duke of Burgundy and War Vessel at Liverpool, and he missed a tempting engagement at Birmingham in order to run in this race. Most serious opposition to him may come from newcomers in Herodote Bachelor and Incendiaire, both of which have been well schooled and are fit from flat-racing. Road Hog is another that is well spoken of, but I think that holds much better credentials.

I cannot see Lynton repeating his last year's success in the Cranborne Steeplechase, and a great deal more to my liking is Sea Rover, who put up an impressive performance when he finished third to the dead-heaters, Delaneige and Don Bradman, at Liverpool. Blaze, third twelve months ago, is fancied to do at least as well on this occasion; while connections of Brienz, Gold Cup, and Cooleen are equally confident that their horses will figure prominently. I take to represent me.

There are two races at Newbury with the title of Andover Steeplechase. One, run in November last year, was won by Heavy, who now has a stone less to carry. The other, contested in December, went to Golden Miller, who now has a couple of pounds less to shoulder. I expect to prove successful now. He has had only two previous outings this season and will have benefited from both of them. Khris Kingle, third in last year's event, and Shannon Breeze may be his nearest attendants at the finish.

STEPAWAY

accounted for a big field in such splendid style at Wincanton last time out that I fail to see what is to beat him in the Round Oak Hurdle. Princess Avril, Mountainy Man and Brunswick may fare best of the remainder.

And How, who won last season's race; Uncanny II., Onq Cop and True Count appear to hold the best credentials in the Yatesbury Selling Hurdle. I hope to see

AND HOW

complete a double for Tabor's stable, and may be equal to winning the Alfriston Selling Steeplechase.

FERRANS

IRISH AMATEURS SCORE

All Five Victorious in Detroit Tournament

DETROIT (MICHIGAN), Wednesday.

A CROWD of about 6,000 spectators gave a great reception to the team of Irish amateur boxers, who made a highly successful appearance here by defeating five of Detroit's picked battlers in sensational style.

Miles Doyle, the Corinthian bantam-weight, displayed great form in outpointing Jimmy Urso, an American Olympic boxer, in a thrilling three-round contest. The Irishman attacked from the first bell, and continually stabbed a sharp, hurtful left into Urso's face. Maintaining the pressure, Doyle several times jerked his opponent's head back with heavy rights, and Urso could do nothing to stem the onslaught.

McKENNA HITS HARD

William McKenna, the Army feather-weight, outpointed Stanley Cieslik in another all-action bout. The Irishman waded in with whole-hearted, two-fisted punching, and drove his opponent all round the ring. Cieslik was almost knocked out in the second round, when a right-hander draped him over the ropes.

Sean Clancy (Arbour Hill), light-weight, wasted no time in knocking out Stanley Wieczorek in the second round of his contest. He disposed of his rival with a dazzling display of boxing, and twice floored the American in the first round with a barrage of lefts and rights to the jaw. Wieczorek came up gamely for the second round, but he was soon knocked out by a heavy right-hook.

Another knock-out victory for the Irish team followed, William Moore, the Army welter-weight, finishing Dave Egan in the second round. Moore handed out severe punishment to Egan, scoring with tearing punches from all angles, and he dealt out heavy punishment before finally delivering the quietus.

The clashing of heavy-weights, in which Dominic Lydon (Garda) outpointed John Kroger, over three round, provided the most exciting contest of the evening. The result was in doubt until almost the last few seconds, and Lydon gained a narrow decision. The Irishman stopped a series of right-handers which dropped him to the canvas in the second round. He rose and beat the count, but was groggy, until the bell gave him welcome relief. Recuperating in amazing fashion, the Irishman started the third round at a cracking pace and pounded Kroger unmercifully to take a well-merited decision.

The Irish boxers leave for New York to-day and sail for home to-morrow.

KELLS TOURNAMENT

An attractive programme was staged at Kells last night, when a large attendance witnessed twelve well-contested bouts. Mr. F. Aiken, Minister for Defence, was an interested spectator. Results:—

Feather-weight—Corporal Quinn (Collins) beat Private Boshell (Portobello).

Light-weight—P. Finnegan (Arbour Hill) beat Private Black (Portobello); P. Gernon (St. Andrew's) beat Corporal Bonham (Cork).

Welter-weight—Corporal Evenden (Collins) beat J. Sweney (Avona).

Middle-weight—Garda Flood k.o. Private Lanigan (Portobello) in the second round; Private Carroll (Collins) beat Private de Courcy (Portobello).

Cruiser-weight—Private J. Kenny beat Private Curran.

Juvenile—J. McDonald (Arbour Hill) beat O. O'Reilly (Trim); Boy Desmond (Portobello) beat Volunteer Tumulty (Kells); S. Tallon (St. Andrew's) beat T. Hughes (Corinthians).

Other contests—Private Walsh (Portobello) beat Volunteer F. Sutton (Kells); D. Murphy (Arbour Hill) beat Volunteer W. Bell (Kells).

FROM THE HUNTING FIELDS

QUEEN'S CO. HOUNDS

On Tuesday last these hounds met at Cullahill in fine, but cold, weather. The first draw was Agharney gorse, where they quickly found. The fox, breaking at the far end, ran between the road and part of the point-to-point course of some years back. He then crossed the road at Mr. Sullivan's gate, ran across his lawn and round behind the house, then over the road and down through Agharney, leaving the gorse to his right, pointing for Lisdowney, but swinging right again went up to the road just at Mr. Dunne's. From here he ran down the hill through the gorse, and on as if for Hibbert's, but some cattle foiled the line and we were not able to get going again, so ended an enjoyable hunt of 35 minutes.

Our next draw was Moore's gorse, which held at least a brace. The pack hunted one up behind Mr. Sullivan's, where he turned sharp back, but ran almost the same line again and went through the gorse near Mr. Carroll's. He then crossed the road, and hounds ran hard over Mr. Kennedy's farm to Hibbert's, where he turned right-handed without running through the covert, and carried on over the old point-to-point course, and got to ground in Mr. Paul Murphy's farm at Seskin, having given us a fast hunt of 40 minutes over a fine line of country.

FINGAL HARRIERS

Mrs. W. B. Carson was in charge when hounds met at The Naul, owing to the absence through illness of the Joint Master, Mr. R. Collen. A hare found on Mr. Ball's farm ran through the Winnings and past Whitestown demesne, whose owner, Colonel Woods, we were all pleased to see out on foot. The hunt continued through Grangemount to Balgaddy, where puss turned sharply and ran back to Whitestown, where she was left. Finding again in Grangemount, a nice hunt ensued through Newtown and Balscadden to Flemington, where hounds were stopped.

The usual big fields met hounds at The Ward Cross-roads on Tuesday. Without delay we found a hare on Mr. Nugent's land, which took us through Newpark and Shallon, and, re-crossing Newpark, ran through Cruicerath to Coolquay, where scent failed. There was a quick find in Irishtown, and after making a big circle our quarry led through Ballymacarney almost to the Ashbourne road, where scent faded out. Spricklestown was drawn blank, and nothing further was done.

Owing to Tuesday next being a country holiday, hounds meet at The Boot on Monday, 7th inst.

PROSPECTS FOR THE FIRST TEST

THE IMPORTANCE OF WINNING THE TOSS

BRISBANE, Wednesday.

One word, "heads," or "tails," from G. O. Allen, the English captain, before the start of the first Test between Australia and England here on Friday may decide the result of the match, possibly the destiny of "the Ashes." Nearly everything depends on the toss. Weather prophets, in their forecasts to-day, predict the continuance of the prevailing hot sultry weather, but suggestions of thunderstorms after the week-end create the possibility of Verity, the Yorks spin bowler, routing the Australian batsmen on a sticky wicket should the coin fall in a way favourable to England.

Considering the long drought, Farquhar, the groundsman, has prepared a surprisingly good and well-grassed wicket. It is likely to be on the fast side, although it will probably take spin earlier than usual.

BROWN DOUBTFUL

Despite the fact that W. A. Brown, the Queensland batsman, who was expected to open the Australian innings, is almost certain to find the thumb hurt in the match with the M.C.C. just ended insufficiently mended to enable him to play, local opinion continues to favour Australia, but, since the splendid first-wicket partnership of Barnett and Fagg, Australian critics have reversed their earlier boasts of a walk-over for Australia. The English players are riding on the crest of a wave of optimism and reborn confidence since the good display of their batsmen in their last match before the Test.

If Brown finds himself unable to play it may prove a serious blow to Australia's prospects, for he is a brilliant opening batsman. He jarred his thumb badly when fielding a ball from Barnett on Monday, and took no part in fielding on the last day of the Queensland match. The effect of the injury was seen in his failure in batting, too. After a splendid 74 in the first innings, he got only five runs in the second.

Brown practised at the nets this morning, but was unable to continue, and this afternoon an X-ray examination showed that the thumb was badly bruised, though no bones were broken. He will have another test at the nets to-morrow. The Australian authorities will not make any pronouncement concerning his withdrawal until then. If Brown is unable to play, C. L. Badcock, of South Australia, is almost certain to open the Australian innings with J. H. Fingleton. Don Tallon, the brilliant young Queensland wicket-keeper, will probably be called in as twelfth man.

Brisbane is already in the grip of "Test fever," and people are arriving from all parts of Queensland and other States by rail, road, boat, and air. Accommodation is severely taxed, and even some of the Australiant Test players have found it difficult to get rooms at hotels.

INTENSE HEAT

Players of both the English and Australian teams had a foretaste to-day of what they may expect during the Test. The weather was roastingly hot, and the players perspired freely while at practice.

PIONEERS FINISH STRONGLY

TOURING TEAM BEATEN IN FAST GAME

PIONEERS ............... 9 W. HARTLEPOOL 6

West Hartlepool continued their Irish tour yesterday at Trinity Hall, where Pioneers beat them by 9 goals to 6. Despite the heavy ground the match was a fast and closely contested affair, and it was only in the closing stages that Pioneers assumed superiority, the visitors appearing to tire.

Soon after the start Miss E. Carter scored for the visitors. Both sides then attacked in turn, and Misses Cox and Stokes put Pioneers ahead. Miss Spain at once replied, and goals by Miss Cox and Miss Lascelles left the scores even at three each at the interval. In the second period goals from Misses Lombard, Denham and Darley for Pioneers, and by Misses Sergeant, E. Carter and Spain for Hartlepool, left matters level again. In the last five minutes Miss Darley scored twice, and Miss Lombard once for the home side.

For Pioneers, the best players were Misses Millar, Scott, Cox, Lombard, McMullen and Darley, and for West Hartlepool Misses Stonehouse, Lascelles, Spain, Sergeant, Saunderson and E. Carter.

QUEEN'S STILL UNBEATEN

U.C.D. FALL AWAY IN THE CLOSING STAGES

QUEEN'S UNIV. .... 9 U.C.D. ............ 3

Queen's University maintained their unbeaten record, when, at Lansdowne road yesterday, they defeated University College, Dublin, by 3 tries to 1 penalty goal.

It was a closely-contested game from start to finish, and had the University College backs taken the chances that came their way, their side might have crossed over with a substantial lead at half-time. Both wing three-quarters missed passes at times when scores looked certain, and Queen's were lucky to be on level terms with their opponents at the interval. Queen's experienced a bit of bad luck when early in the game McKibbin's attempt at a penalty goal saw the ball rebound off the cross-bar. Ryan had better luck with a penalty kick for National, who took the lead after about a quarter of an hour's play. It was subsequent to this that National backs threw away their chances, and when C. J. Irwin scored a try from a cross-kick by MacFarland Queen's got on level terms.

The second half had progressed on much similar lines to the opening one, with neither side ever getting really on top until ten minutes from the end, when, from some loose scrummaging, C. G. Irwin broke away and passed to J. W. S. Irwin, who barged his way over for a try which Kennedy failed to improve upon. The National forwards, who up to this had been holding their opponents well, fell away, and Queen's getting the ball with regularity from the scrummages, it was not long before Esler stole away on the blind side to score another try. McKibbin failed with the kick.

QUEEN'S BACKS HELD

Against a very stubborn defence put up by the U.C.D. backs, especially Smyth and Bailey, the Queen's backs, who had a splendid service of the ball from their forwards, were held well in check, and it was the forwards who won the game. Not that there was any marked superiority in the play of the visiting forwards, but they packed and scrummaged better and lasted out the game to the very end. For University College, O'Brien, at out-half, and Bailey, who was obviously nursing his injured leg, were the outstanding backs, and of the forwards, Ryan, Dwyer, Headon and Boland were best. Toner had an off day at full-back, but Smyth, who played at centre three-quarter, did an amount of damaging tackling.

Davey was a sound full-back for Queen's, and of the three-quarters, Dobbin and McKibbin were best. Esler was an enterprising scrum half, and his partner, Cromey, handled accurately and kicked well, but was inclined to run across the field too much. Of a good scrummaging pack, Kennedy, Mayne, J. W. S. Irwin and C. J. Irwin were best. Teams:—

University College, Dublin—F. D. Toner (St. Mary's, Galway); S. Morrissey (Blackrock College), A. H. Bailey (Pres. College, Bray) (capt.), W. C. Smyth (Mungret College), W. Dallas (Castleknock College); D. O'Brien (Blackrock College), V. MacAllister (O'Connell's School); T. Boland (Castleknock College), L. Gibson (Castleknock College), J. Ryan (Castleknock College), F. C. Dwyer (Castleknock College), B. Scannell (Presentation College, Bray), T. Headon (O'Connell's Schools), J. Murray (Presentation College, Glasthule), E. Lanigan (Catholic University School).

Queen's University—R. R. Davey; S. Dobbin, H. R. McKibbin, D. H. McFarland, T. E. Field; J. E. Cromey, J. Esler; H. Kennedy (capt.), R. B. Mayne, J. W. S. Irwin, C. G. Irwin, S. O. Morton, M. R. Ross, S. D. Corry, F. H. Cromey.

Referee—Mr. J. McLoughlin.

ENGLAND TRIAL CHANGES

Injuries have necessitated two changes in the teams for the England international trial at Workington on Saturday. P. Cranmer (Richmond) drops out of the England side, his place at centre three-quarter being taken by R. Leyland (Army and Richmond), and at full-back for the Possibles R. J. Barr (Leicester) comes in for H. J. M. Uren (Waterloo).

SCHOOLS' RESULTS

Bowen Shield—Christian Brothers' College, Cork, nil; Presentation College, Cork, nil.

Masonic School, 8 points; St. Columba's College, 6 points.

CORK CUP MEETING

Surprises in First Day's Sport at Ballincollig

BY OUR COURSING CORRESPONDENT.

CORK, Wednesday Evening.

WHEN the books were opened on the Cork Cup at Ballincollig this morning, Mr. Pat O'Brien's Ocean Fog, who won three courses in the Irish Cup last season, was made favourite, but from 20 to 1 the kennel companion, Ocean Dusk, nominated by Mr. Tim O'Brien, came with a rush to the head of the list at threes.

A home trial had made out Ocean Dusk to be the faster, but out he went in his first course, well led and well beaten by Wily Councillor. Then Ocean Fog resumed his position as favourite, and he raised the flag over Coming Eaglet quite handsomely, but the second time slipped he came a cropper, being just led and only just beaten by Ballygroman Whalebone, running in the nomination of the Ballybunion courser, Mr. James Clarke.

EXCUSE ME SIR FAILS

Nor is that the end of the chapter of surprises that marked the struggle for the Cup, which is celebrating, so to speak, its coming-of-age. Excuse Me Sir had run up to Balline Laddie for the Lord Daresbury Cup at the recent Kilmallock meeting, and was fancied by many to make amends for that failure, but in a terrific buckle in the second round with Rib Iron he was beaten for the decisive first score which the Mallow divider made on an outside.

There were other surprises, as, for instance, the defeat of the Limerick winner, Robin Cronin, also in the second round by Carrig Rebel, but they were of a minor nature, and even now the stake bears a very open appearance. Good judges think Rib Iron and Shalivahan will, as at Mallow, reach the last round, but there is one at the top in Wily Councillor, who is moving very freely. If Ocean Dusk and Ring Tommy have any pace at all, the Councillor cannot be left out of the reckoning, for he led Ocean Dusk four lengths and Ring Tommy almost half a dozen lengths, whilst he is the best handicapped of the eight survivors, each of his spins being short, sharp, and decisive.

SURPLUS STOCK'S FORM

Rib Iron had not much to spare from Excuse Me Sir in the run-up, but he can dust the hare about to some purpose, and should account for Ballygroman Brandy, who also got off lightly in his course with Iris the Liar. I certainly did not like the running of Surplus Stock. He is fast, but does not like too much of it. Still, a good beginning is everything, even in a long park like Ballincollig.

Shalivahan ran his courses out right well, and it should be a fine trial with him and Keel Ruby, who ran two short courses very smoothly, indeed. However, I fancy Wily Councillor and Ballygroman Whalebone will go to slips for the fifth course, and if Wily Councillor does not win I will not be the only critic to be disappointed in my summing-up.

THE TRIAL STAKES

Ocean Dawn may make some amends for Mr. P. O'Brien in the Dog Trial Stakes. He has nice pace, and Crish Bawn looks the pick of the bitch puppies. Alpine Peach, however, went a good bat, and did not get much of it.

It was winterish weather, with a cold, moist wind; but the hares, except for the first few courses in the second round of the Cup, stood up splendidly to provide excellent sport for one of the largest crowds I have seen at Ballincollig for the Cup meeting.

THE CORK CUP. Winner, £100 and cup; second, £30; two dogs, £8 each; four dogs, £4 each.

Mr. D. Murphy ns. Carrig Rebel beat Mr. D. D. O'Connell ns. Fairy Hero.
Mr. P. McGrath ns. Robin Cronin beat Mr. Sweetman ns. Juggle Again.

CAPITAL TRIALS AT CLONDALKIN

RYLAND TIPP DISPLAYS SMART FORM

The weather was none too favourable for the second meeting of the season of the South Dublin Club yesterday at Clondalkin Park, and the attendance was disappointing. The coursing, however, was up to a high standard. Hares in the majority of cases stood up stoutly, and afforded genuine tests of merit, while, with the five stakes run out, the meeting from the sporting point of view, proved most successful.

Some smart youngsters were on view in the Trial Stakes, and Ryland Tipp, a speedy son of Ryland R, proved the winner. This dog displayed good working ability in all his courses, and, in the decider with Roving Wicklow, led three lengths and took two strong points before the loser nipped in for the kill.

Rugged Glen won the South Dublin Stake, leading Fair Chevalier three lengths in the decider, and having a clear balance of points at the end of a long spin. Jockey's Ride had two no-courses before winning his first round course, and was subsequently drawn.

NO SCORE!

An incident in yesterday's Rugby football match between University College, Dublin, and Queen's University, Belfast. "National" players flinging themselves on the ball when it went loose over Queen's goal-line. The whistle, however, had gone for "knock-on."

ENGLAND DEFEATS HUNGARY

A SPLENDID MATCH

Home Side Flattered by Margin of Four Goals

ENGLAND ......... 6 HUNGARY ......... 2

VICTORY for England by six goals to two over Hungary at Highbury yesterday came as the result of a splendid display of football. The scorers for the winners were Drake (3), Brook, Britton and Carter, and for Hungary Cseh and Vincze. Hungary played well enough and did such a good share of the attacking that the score scarcely does them justice. When helped by a strong wind they showed high skill in ball-control and low passing, but their defence was always liable to become too widespread, and this proved fatal against the powerful English attack. Certainly, the wide margin flattered the winners to some extent, and it would have been less but for a flagrant case of "hands," which received full punishment with a goal direct from a free kick by Britton.

FAST AND CLEVER

When that occurred Hungary were showing some of the best football of the match. They reduced a half-time deficit of 3-1 to an odd goal, but after the fatal lapse of the defender, who pulled down the ball to prevent it going to Crooks, they found the force of the opposition too much for them.

The Hungarians forced the pace in desperate efforts to pull the game round, but they met their masters. If anything, they overdid trickiness in working the ball and could not always beat the tackler, but in pace and cleverness their football reached a high standard.

In all respects England played well. They realised the need for sustained excellence and never spared themselvs, and even when victory seemed certain they maintained a high speed and determination both in defence and attack. Like their visitors, they made most of their combined runs with the ball on the ground.

Muddy turf was not a hindrance, and as the ball soon became heavy the boisterous wind did not prove a serious handicap. No doubt the conditions influenced the players to avoid high kicking and concentrate on accurate passing to favourably-placed colleagues. The Hungarians excelled in this attractive play. One of them was invariably in a position to use the ball to advantage, but they were gradually overplayed by the stronger footwork of a thoroughly capable England side.

At times England were so hard pressed that Hungary were unlucky not to score more than twice. Tweedy occasionally failed to get to the ball promptly, and Male and Catlin each came to the rescue by clearing from the goal-line. Both the backs kicked and tackled in great style and never were at fault. Young, for the most part, played well back, while Britton and Keen, on either side of him, worked with such energy and resource that they contributed both to the soundness of the defence and brilliance of the attack. All the forwards went through the match most satisfactorily.

HOW THE GOALS CAME

Drake took chief honours with three goals. He was always on the ball, making and taking passes when going full speed, and the ability of all the front line to accomplish this ball-control when sprinting accounted mainly for the large score. Bowden and Carter both dribbled and passed in the approved manner of inside forwards, and they varied their passes to their partners or Drake in a manner baffling to defenders.

Crooks stood out conspicuously with many fine runs and passes. From a pass by Britton he made the way for the first goal, kicked by Brook, from an opening made by Drake midway through the first half. His combined work with Bowden brought the second goal, by Drake, who got the third from a corner from Brook.

Cseh, with a very neat, low left foot shot, beat Tweedy directly after England's first goal, and Vincze used a long pass from the left soon after change of ends. Then came Britton's goal from the free kick. Drake, snapping up an opening, scored brilliantly with a low, left-foot shot, and a long pass by Britton found Carter ready to head into the net.

The crowd of 56,000 fell below expectations.

England—Tweedy (Grimsby Town); Male (Arsenal) (captain), Catlin (Sheffield Wednesday); Britton (Everton), Young (Huddersfield), Keen (Derby County); Crooks (Derby County), Bowden (Arsenal), Drake (Arsenal), Carter (Sunderland), Brook (Manchester City).

Hungary—A. Szabo (Hungaria); J. Vago (Bocskay), S. Biro (Hungaria); G. Lazar (Ferencvaros), Dr. G. Sarosi (Ferencvaros) (captain), J. Dudas (Hungaria); F. Sas (Hungaria), J. Vincze (Ujpest), L. Cseh (Hungaria), G. Zsengeller (Ujpest), P. Titkos (Hungaria).

Referee—M. Lucien Le Clercq (France).

"ENJOYED THE GAME"

"We enjoyed the game," said Dr. Sarosi, the Hungarian captain, after the game, "and England were without doubt the better side. The margin of our defeat is depressing, and I think we should have scored at least two more goals. Perhaps, we will have better luck next time."

Hungary plays Ireland in Dublin on Sunday next, and Holland in Rotterdam on Wednesday.

WELSH VICTORY AT DUNDEE OVER HANDICAPPED SCOTS TEAM

WALES ............... 2 SCOTLAND ....... 1

Wales, who had already conquered England, gained their second victory in the international championship when, at Dundee yesterday, they beat Scotland on their merits by the odd goal of three. Thus the Principality repeated their performance of winning on Scottish soil in 1932-33. Glover scored both goals for Wales and Walker got Scotland's goal. Wales have only to draw with Ireland in Wales on March 17 to carry off the championship. A similar position existed last winter, when defeat at the hands of Ireland robbed Wales of the honour.

While no one could dispute the merit of the latest success, it must in fairness to Scotland be stated that the home side experienced all the bad luck of the afternoon. Ancell, the Newcastle United full back, was injured two minutes after the start, and this upset the whole of the Scottish left flank, especially in the second half, when the side had to be re-arranged, with Ancell, limping badly, on the left wing, Duncan moving inside, and Mills and Brown falling back to left-half and left-back respectively. To crown Scotland's misfortune, both Mills and Walker hit a post with splendid shots when inches would have made all the difference.

Wales were clearly the more purposeful and more dangerous side. They played a splendid open game, and not only revealed great speed, but worked with delightful uniformity. Scotland, on the other hand, did most attacking, but their policy of keeping the ball close never paid against a dour defence that gave little away.

The Scots had chances, but failed to accept them, in the second half, when, despite their handicap, they fought strenuously and, at times, with brilliance. The game, on the whole, was exceptionally hard and keen, with any amount of incident and thrills, although after the second Welsh goal play became mediocre, with Scotland never looking likely to effect a draw.

In a clever Welsh team Turner, Ellis and Griffiths were at the top of their form. The Charlton full back was easily the best defender on the field, while Griffiths's work at half outdid that of any other middle line man. In fact, Griffiths proved himself one of the greatest players in the match. Forward, Hopkins, the dapper Brentford winger, and Bryn Jones formed an excellent combination on the right, and took full advantage of the Scottish team reorganisation, and, with Brown below form, the work of these men was rendered all the more easy.

Hopkins and Bryn Jones, with Glover, who was always alert, formed an attacking trio which the weak Scottish halves could never really hold, and the main reason for Scotland's overthrow was ineffectiveness at half. Each time Glover scored Simpson, the Scottish pivot and captain, was partly at fault. First he stumbled, and on the second occasion he failed to cover the Welsh leader.

Scotland, however, owed a good deal to Dawson, their goalkeeper, who impressed more than Gray, while Mills, McCulloch and Walker were the pick of a Scottish forward line responsible for many clever things.

The first international in Dundee for 28 years attracted 23,858 people, who saw Wales open shakily. Gray was fortunate two or three times not to be beaten, but Wales sprang a surprise in 23 minutes by getting a simple, but perfect, goal. When Hopkins lobbed the ball into the middle Dawson apparently had it covered, but stumbled, and Glover shot low into the net. Scotland seemed to lose their sting in the second half, but Walker equalised only for Wales to fight like demons and snatch victory with another goal by Glover ten minutes from the end. Teams:—

Scotland—Dawson (Glasgow Rangers); Anderson (Hearts), Ancell (Newcastle United); Massie (Aston Villa), Simpson (Glasgow Rangers) (captain), Brown (Glasgow Rangers); Munro (Hearts), Walker (Hearts), McCulloch (Brentford), Mills (Aberdeen), Duncan (Derby County).

Wales—Gray (Chester); Turner (Charlton), Ellis (Motherwell); Murphy (West Bromwich Albion), Griffiths (Aston Villa) (captain), Richards (Brentford); Hopkins (Brentford), Bryn Jones (Wolverhampton), Glover (Grimsby Town), Jones (L.) (Coventry City), Morris (Birmingham).

THE DISPUTE IN IRELAND

REFERENCE BY MEMBER OF ENGLISH F.A.

At a dinner given by the Football Association to the Hungarian football team at the Hotel Victoria, London, last night, Mr. W. Pickford, Vice-President of the F.A., who presided, in referring to the guests, said he welcomed amongst them Messrs. Prole, Chairman, and Wickham, Secretary of the Football Association of the Irish Free State.

He trusted that the difference between the Free State and the North would soon be adjusted. As far as the F.A. of England were concerned, they were glad to see all Irishmen, whether from the North or the South. He would be glad to see Ireland playing as a united country, as they did in Rugby. He could assure their friends in the Free State that they would be glad to welcome them back into the union of British football nations.

DRUMCONDRA IN SEMI-FINAL

FEARON'S DEFEATED IN LEINSTER CUP TIE

DRUMCONDRA ..... 1 FEARON'S ......... 0

Fearon's Athletic, who have an unbeaten record in the Leinster Senior League, met with their first defeat of the season when, at Tolka Park yesterday, they were beaten by Drumcondra, the holders, in the third round of the Leinster Cup. Drumcondra now meet Dundalk in the semi-final on December 16.

Considering their fine League record, Fearon's display was a disappointing one. Little fault could be found with their defence, but their half-backs, while earnest workers, were rather easily beaten for possession, while their forwards were very weak in front of goal. They had as much of the play as Drumcondra, but lost many good openings by slowness in shooting. Their best forward was Leonard, who, however, spoiled a lot of otherwise good work by lying too far up the field.

Flynn, in Drumcondra's goal, was alert, and just before the interval he saved a penalty kick taken by Leonard for a foul on Doyle. Donnelly and Meehan were the pick of the winners' forwards, and the latter scored the only goal five minutes after the start, when, from a pass by Donnelly, he sent in a fast, strong shot, which Penrose reached, but failed to hold.

Drumcondra—Flynn; Hoey, J. Mullally; McCarthy, Ewing, M. Farrell; Menton, Walsh, Donnelly, Mulville, Meehan.

Fearon's Athletic—Penrose; Robinson, Mooney; Buchanan, Murray, Molloy; Byrne, Hogan, Doyle, Leonard, Reid.

LINFIELD ROUT DERRY

SECOND HALF GOALS IN GOLD CUP FINAL

LINFIELD ........... 7 DERRY CITY ... 2

Linfield, the holders, won the Gold Cup for the ninth time when they beat Derry City by 7 goals to 2 at the Oval, Belfast, before a crowd which paid £476 for admission.

Derry scored first, and, while Linfield equalised before half-time, Derry looked the more cohesive side. After the interval, however, Linfield were much the better side and simply ran through the Derry defence, which became demoralised. Baird went through for three goals, McMurray, the Surrey cricketer, played brilliantly at outside-right, and the Linfield half-backs were masters of the opposing attack. Both Derry goals were the result of penalty kicks.

Thirteen minutes after the start Derry scored when Richardson was adjudged to have handled after Kelly had placed a corner to Grant. Carlyle scored from the penalty. Linfield had a large share of the play, but their finishing was poor, and Derry settled down to play clever football. Five minutes from half-time, however, in the course of a mêlee, Hume forced the ball into the net for the equaliser.

Eight minutes after the start Hume dribbled through and passed to McMurray, who gave Linfield the lead. A minute later McMurray dribbled through and sent to Hume, who shot into the net, but was off-side. Frame made a brilliant save from McLeod, but Linfield were the better side, and Baird went through to score Linfield's third goal. Hume scored Linfield's fourth in 25 minutes, and Baird made the total five in the next minute. Then Baird went clean through to score. Following on a Derry raid, when Frame was clearing, Hare fouled McLeod, and Carlyle scored from the penalty. In the last minute Hume headed the seventh for Linfield from a corner. Teams:—

Linfield—Frame; Hare, Richardson; Edwards, Perry, Miles; McMurray, Donnelly, Hume, Baird, McCormick.

Derry City—Wallace; Hobson, Ross; Doherty, Carlyle, Sambie; Clark, Grant, McLeod, Duffy, Kelly.

SOUTH-EASTERN XI. IN DUBLIN

LEINSTER'S BEST ON VIEW TO-DAY

The first representative match of the season in Leinster takes place at Londonbridge road this afternoon, when Leinster meet the South-Eastern XI. With hockey so widely spread in Munster, it was felt that the clubs in Waterford, Tramore, Wexford and Enniscorthy were not getting much value in the match play from the rest of the province, so last season they formed a section of their own and affiliated with Leinster, who sent down a team to play them in Waterford at the close of last season. By special request the Leinster side was almost the strongest possible, and the game, although rather one-sided, was of definite educational value to the country players.

For to-day's match, Leinster's best side, with the exception of T. G. McVeagh, who is injured, will be fielded again, and they should, of course, have little difficulty in winning. It might, perhaps, have been better value from the visitors' point of view had the reserve Leinster XI., which does duty against Connaught each year, been chosen for to-day's game, since the South-Eastern players will presumably be kept busy defending all the time. Their form last year was promising, and they should derive further benefit this afternoon.

A useful scratch side, captained by C. N. Dagg, of Three Rock Rovers, beat Dalkey "A" by 6 goals to 1, at Londonbridge road, yesterday. The Trinity players, Sloan and Adamson, proved too good for the Dalkey defence; and, behind them, Cuffe, Ingram, and Delaney, played very well. Stephenson, Duffy and Martin were the best of the Dalkey side. Adamson (2), Sloan (2), and Dagg (2), netted for the winners, Sleator replying for Dalkey.

DUBLIN DULL

IMPERIAL TOBACCOS STRONG

COURTAULDS DEPRESSED

Markets opened on the Dublin Stock Exchange yesterday in dull fashion, and as the day wore on this was even more pronounced, and interest inclined to dry up.

The Funds, both Home and British, showed an easier tendency, and Land Bonds dipped to 110, while War Loan fell 6s. 3d.

Banks, in places, tended lower, and Provincial Old lost a further 1s.

Guinness, on renewed selling, yielded 1s., and Distillers Ord. gave way to 117s. 3d.

Rails were idle, apart from a slight falling off in Great Southern Pref.

Alliance Gas Ord. eased to 35s. 9d., and Carroll Ord. were again dull at 30s. 3d.

Millar and Beatty Pref. added 1s., but Goodbody Ord. and Independent "B" Ord. shaded off.

The chief feature among British Industrials was the demand for Imperial Tobaccos, induced chiefly by the excellent results published by Carreras, Ltd. They opened at 180s., but later gave way to 179s. 6d., a rise of 2s. 9d. on the day.

Courtaulds met with liquidation and relapsed 1s. 10½d. Woolworth Ord. fell 2s., and Dunlop Rubbers and Imperial Chemicals inclined to give way.

THE INDUSTRIAL MARKET

TENDENCY UNSETTLED

Trading in the Industrial Market was on a reduced scale, and the general tendency became unsettled by home and international political considerations. There was no real pressure to sell, but a certain amount of liquidation occurred, and this caused operators to mark down prices in virtually all sections. With Wall Street in doubtful mood, the trans-Atlantic counters moved in erratic fashion, and finished weak after official hours in the Street. "Emmies" were subject to a little scattered selling, and closed 1s. down. Cable and Wireless showed little variation.

IRON AND STEEL DULL.

Following the strength recently displayed, Iron and Steel descriptions proved particularly susceptible to the general dulness, and some heavy declines were recorded. A firm exception was provided by Tube Investments, which improved a little. The sharp rise in the earlier days of the week in Dorman Longs was not maintained.

Apart from Henleys, which improved 1/16, Electrical Equipments had a heavy appearance. There was renewed selling in Crompton Parkinsons, and the price fell 3s. 3d.

The Aircraft section was also depressed, and losses ranged to upwards of ½ in some cases. Hawker Siddeleys were finally 2s. 9d. lower; Hawkers and Rolls-Royce gave way.

Most issues in the Motor group had a heavy appearance, although little selling occurred.

BREWERIES HEAVY.

Breweries had a heavy appearance, and, with no support forthcoming, prices were lowered in several instances.

Tobaccos made the best showing at the start on the Carreras results and distribution. Carreras "A" rose a point at the opening, but profit-taking caused a reaction, which, however, still left them ½ up on the day.

Among Stores shares losses of ⅛ occurred.

In the Provision and Catering section Scribbans proved a rather better market. Unilevers fell back.

Textiles generally receded. Courtaulds came on offer among Rayons and finished 2s. down on the day. British Celanese receded.

Shipping issues were subject to a few scattered realisations by short-term operators.

Very little support was forthcoming among the Miscellaneous issues, and with a general marking down in progress this section made a poor showing.

OILS HEAVY

In common with most other sections of the Stock Exchange yesterday, the Oil share market became dull. An easier tendency was noticeable from the start, prices opening lower in most cases and further declining as the day progressed. The heavy tone was attributed to nervousness regarding the political situation. As a precautionary measure, dealers marked prices down sharply, so that the declines finally recorded were out of proportion to the actual volume of business. The market, as a whole, closed with a heavy appearance, the losses, in some cases, being of substantial amount. Despite the hopes which are entertained that the Royal Dutch and Shell Companies may decide to pay interim dividends early in the new year, sales, both locally and on French account, were responsible for a heavy fall in Mexican Eagles. The view was expressed however, that the decline was not warranted by the actual volume of selling. The weakness became pronounced in the late dealings, and at the close the price was 2s. 6d. down at 27s. 3d. Canadian Eagles became weak in sympathy. Owing to the dull conditions prevailing elsewhere, Trinidad Leaseholds failed to maintain the improvement of the preceding day.

RUBBERS EASIER

The modest investment interest recently displayed in Rubber shares dried up yesterday, and the market became rather unsettled as operators showed an increasing desire to reduce or close commitments. Most of the better class shares came on offer, and during the closing stages quotations were further depressed by a slight reaction in the commodity price. United Sua Betong dropped another 1s. 6d. to 69s. 4½d., while Anglo-Dutch, Kuala Lumpur, Rubber Trust, and Linggi were others which lost ground. Quiet conditions existed in the commodity section, and spot rubber, after selling at 8⅝d., eased to 8 11/16d., per pound.

LONDON FLAT

TOBACCOS A BRIGHT EXCEPTION

Continued uncertainty over the international situation was responsible for the further falling off in business on the London Stock Markets yesterday, and dealers encountered only an extremely small volume of buying orders. From the start dull conditions prevailed, and, as the session progressed, persistent selling caused quotations to weaken. Gilt-edged securities suffered a sharp set-back, and numerous Industrial, Mining and Oil shares also showed substantial losses. The desire to reduce commitments was not pronounced, however, and fluctuations in many of the more speculative counters were due to some extent to precautionary marking down by dealers. Markets were not entirely uninteresting, however, as Tobacco shares, stimulated by the good dividend and bonus statement by Carreras, Ltd., received considerable support and developed fresh strength.

BRITISH FUNDS.

Notwithstanding the big December 1 disbursements, Gilt-edged stocks lacked support, and prices were quickly affected by liquidation. In the late dealings selling on foreign account accelerated the downward movement, and the market closed weak. War Loan, at 105⅝, were 11/16 lower, while Funding Fours 3½ per cent., Conversion 3½ per cent. and several others receded by only slightly smaller amounts. Old Consols and Local Loans, together with certain India Stocks, were quoted ex div.

FOREIGN BONDS.

Foreign Bonds were uncertain, and Germans, which remained on offer, lost ground. The Young Loan dropped 2 to 37½, ex div. A similar fall occurred in Poland Sevens. Other Europeans were maintained, but Far Easterns receded and Brazilian issues failed to hold on to their recent gains.

RAILS.

The British Rail market was influenced by a batch of disappointing traffic figures, and dealings resulted from liquidation. Great Western Ord. shed ½ to 62. Brums receded smartly, and other junior stocks reacted. Foreign Rails were mostly idle and steady, but B.A.G.S. and certain other Argentine stocks came on offer, and declined. Dulness also characterised American and Colonial Rails, and, among the latter, Canadas were notably lower.

INDUSTRIALS.

A brisk demand for Tobacco shares was outstanding in the Industrial market. Carreras Ord. reached 12, while "Imps" jumped to a new high record of 9¼ before quotations were affected by profit-taking. Transatlantics reflected less satisfactory Wall street news, while profit-taking caused weakness in Iron and Steels, Shipping and recently popular Stores issues. Appreciably lower rates were quoted for Crittalls and the leading Cement issues, while Rayons, Aircrafts, Electricals and Breweries presented a dull appearance.

MINES.

The Mining groups made a poor showing. The Kaffir section was depressed by Cape selling, and quotations followed West Wits. to lower levels. Roan and several other Rhodesian Coppers also went back, and, in a much quieter Diamond department, de Beers Def. failed to retain their recent advance. Rio Tintos were another dull feature, and adverse movements were common among Tin shares. West African and other Gold shares moved to lower levels in sympathy with Kaffirs.

STEPHEN'S GREEN CINEMA

The second annual general meeting of the Stephen's Green Cinema was held at the registered offices of the company, 127 St. Stephen's Green, Dublin.

Sir Thomas Robinson, who presided, said: In moving the adoption of the accounts submitted to you it is my duty to explain, as far as I can, what the directors consider to be the reason for the disappointing result of the trading up to the present. The company was beset with difficulties almost from its inception, all of which could not reasonably have been expected or provided for. First we had the difficulty as regards the issue of shares, which was explained to you at the last general meeting, and which was fully and satisfactorily remedied. There was the further difficulty and delay, not fully anticipated, connected with construction, due to the condition of certain adjoining property, and other matters which we are advised and believe to have been unavoidable. This delay and the uncertainty of the opening date made the booking of pictures by the managing director very difficult. The most serious difficulty occurred when the additional tax was placed upon the trade, calling for an advance on all prices of admission, which in no case covered the additional taxation. We also had to contend with an increase in the cost of film hire. These two items had a serious effect upon anticipated profits. The Board, therefore, are taking all possible steps to adjust the working of the cinema in such a way as to meet these difficulties. The directors consider that a portion of the loss has been incurred in a legitimate effort to establish the popularity of the house with the public by means of super pictures and making the public acquainted with the undoubted comfort and attractions of the house as regards sound, heating and ventilation. I may point out that the loss appearing on the balance sheet includes the loss incurred during construction, and mentioned in the last balance sheet; also the loss between that date and opening date. These items, with the £1,752 written off depreciation, amount to £4,288. There are other items of an exceptional character, and are not likely to recur, and not included in capital account, which would increase this amount, so that the net loss for the trading is the smallest part of the loss shown in the balance sheet.

Mr. Lane seconded the resolution, and, after questions had been asked by a number of the shareholders, the report was carried unanimously.

It was proposed by Sir Thomas Robinson and seconded by Mr. Jessop that Mr. Russell be re-elected as director of the company.

Mr. O'Donnell's election to fill the vacancy created by Mr. Barnett's resignation was proposed by Mr. Kelly and seconded by Mr. Ward.

The meeting concluded with a vote of thanks to the chairman and directors, which was proposed by Mr. Bryers, seconded by Mr. Kenny, and passed unanimously.

M. Antonescu, the Rumanian Foreign Minister, is to visit London and Paris this month, according to present plans.

LONDON MINING MARKET

KAFFIRS AND OTHERS DEPRESSED

There was no improvement in conditions in the Mining market yesterday. Indeed, a feeling of nervousness generally prevailed, and this was due more to the uncertainty regarding the home political situation than to international complications. Open positions have been materially reduced, and there exists no uneasiness so far as could be discovered regarding the final settlement of the account to-day, but there was everywhere distinct weakness. "Kaffirs" were very quiet, and, although the past month's returns were, in the circumstances, regarded as satisfactory, little enthusiasm was aroused. In fact, there was some belated selling by speculators, and prices generally had a downward trend. Although just at the close there were evidences of a slightly better feeling, the market, as a whole, was depressed. It may be pointed out, however, that here, as in other sections, the declines were more a matter of sentiment than the result of actual trading.

Rhodesians were not exempt from the general marking down process, but there was little real trading. Chartered fell away, and some of the Gold shares were lowered, while Rhokana headed a general substantial set-back in the Copper issues.

Diamonds failed to withstand the general débâcle, the De Beers issues, Anglo-American Investment and Consolidated African Selection suffering rather severely. As in other departments, the leaders in the "Jungle" were among the first to feel the effects of the change of sentiment.

Although the price of the metal was well maintained, Tin descriptions failed to free themselves from the effects of the surrounding weakness.

Australians were similarly affected, but, as there have been few speculative operations in this market for some time past, no very material changes could be recorded. Closing prices:—

FINANCIAL PARAGRAPHS

Ismay Industries Bonus Issue

The directors of Ismay Industries, Ltd., announce that, in order to finance expanding interests, they have decided to issue 408,000 Ordinary 5s. shares at 7s. 6d. per share, and offer them to existing shareholders in the ratio of one new share for every five held. The shares were dealt in yesterday around 8s. 6d.

London Brick Deal

The directors of the Bedford Brick Company, in a circular to shareholders, state that, following the receipt of a proposal from the London Brick Company, Ltd., to purchase the property and undertaking of the company, they have negotiated an agreement for sale on terms yielding a substantial capital profit, the acceptance of which they consider to be in the interests of the shareholders. The purchase price agreed is £420,000, payable in cash. After making payments for the termination of contracts and discharging all other liabilities of the company and the costs of liquidation, it is calculated that the sum remaining to the company will be sufficient—after repayment of the Preference capital and dividend—to distribute to Ordinary shareholders not less than 2s. 8d., representing a premium of 33 1-3 per cent. on the 2s. shares.

Standard Life Assurance Company

The total ordinary life assurance business of this company (after deduction of re-assurances) written during the year ended 15th November, 1936, was 7,520 policies, for £4,071,396. This exceeds the corresponding total for 1935 by £160,788, and is the largest total in any one year in the history of the company, whose ordinary life new business has now surpassed all previous records in each of the last four years. In addition, the company issued group life policies assuring £502,030 (as against £468,672 in 1935), and leasehold policies for £541,900. Deferred annuities were written, securing £84,404 per annum under ordinary policies and £219,740 per annum under group pension policies, and £215,280 was secured in single payments under immediate annuity bonds.

A. & S. Henry and Co.

The directors of A. and S. Henry and Co., the Manchester firm of textile manufacturers, merchants and exporters, announce payment of the fixed cumulative dividend on the 5 per cent. cumulative preference stock for the half-year ending December 31. This year and last year, but not the year before, there were interim dividends on this stock, while 3 per cent. was paid for 1935, as for 1934, on the ordinary stock, which was a firm feature in the textile share market yesterday, the £1 units gaining a few pence, to 13s. 6d. The company is understood to have had its full share of the recent improvement in cotton trade business, and the accounts for the year, which are expected in February, should make satisfactory reading.

50 Per Cent. Scrip Bonus

The directors of E. S. and A. Robinson, Ltd., printers and paper bag and cardboard box manufacturers, of Bristol, have during the forty-three years' record of the company adopted a conservative financial policy. They are convening an extraordinary meeting with the object of obtaining the consent of the shareholders to taking £326,376 from reserve and capitalising it. This will enable one fully-paid share to be distributed among holders of the existing ordinary shares in the proportion of one new for every two old. The new shares rank with the old for any further dividend which may be declared for the year ended February 28 next. The company possesses an excellent dividend record, and 16 per cent. has been paid for many years. In 1928 a scrip bonus of 20 per cent. was distributed following 25 per cent. in 1924. A progressive business has been built up both at home and abroad, and continued prosperity may be expected.

Ford Paper Mills

The directors of Ford Paper Mills, Ltd., in a circular to shareholders, state that a conditional offer has been received from Wiggins Teape and Co. (1919), Ltd., the paper makers, to acquire a controlling interest in the company. The offer is conditional upon its acceptance by shareholders representing at least 75 per cent. of the total share capital, or such smaller percentage as Wiggins Teape and Co. (1919), Ltd., may accept. The terms of the offer are 13s. 4d. in cash in respect of each £1 share held, or, at the shareholders' option, one £1 Ordinary share in Wiggins Teape to be allotted at a premium of £1 credited as fully paid, both as to nominal value and premium, in respect of every three £1 shares held, odd shares to be paid for in cash on the basis of 13s. 4d. per share.

United States Treasury's Statement

The Secretary of the United States Treasury, in his usual monthly report, gives the following particulars:—Ordinary receipts $232,774,000 ($272,172,000) ordinary disbursements $280,264,000 ($369,898,000), net balance in general fund $1,405,615,000 ($1,763,629,000), total cash assets in general fund $13,980,990,000 ($14,898,640,000), debt decrease $38,365,000 ($366,000, decrease), emergency expenditure not included in the above $259,611,000 ($314,887,000). The amounts in parenthesis are the relevant figures issued in the report of November.

"The Banker"

The December issue of "The Banker" is partly concerned with foreign exchange problems, some of them being the aftermath of devaluation. The reactions of devaluation upon world trade and upon British overseas trade policy are discussed in a special article, while Dr. Einzig contributes an article on frozen foreign exchange accounts, and Mr. W. W. Syrett writes on forward exchange. Mr. Maurice Mograh contributes an article on legal questions arising out of bankers and infants' accounts, while Mr. F. G. Culmer has written on the current insurance outlook. Mr. A. V. Barber discusses bank cash ratios, with special reference to the 100 per cent. conception lately put forward by Professor Irving Fisher and some other economists.

Aircraft Shares Depressed

A dead-set is being made at the less well-established aircraft manufacturing companies' shares, and lower quotations may be anticipated. With no resistance in the shape of purchases and with dealers rendering no support, it is not difficult to forecast the future of this market. In a way one is glad that a halt has been called, for too much has been made of Government orders as a "bull" factor, and so far the actual extent to which they have been placed is a well-guarded secret. For the next two months the lower-priced aircraft shares may not be buoyant, but it should be remembered that the industry is now a growing and permanent one.

THE MONEY MARKET

DISCOUNTS FIRM

The price of gold yesterday recovered to 141s. 8½d. per fine ounce, a rise of 1½d. There was a premium of ½d. over the dollar. About £323,000 was disposed of.

Silver rose 1/16d. to 21 1/16d. for both spot and forward on a small amount of Indian buying.

The demand for money at ½ per cent. was quiet, and bill rates were unchanged at the higher levels, with three months quoted at ⅝ per cent.

A sharp jump in the value of the "free" Argentine peso during the afternoon hours was the outstanding feature of the foreign exchange market yesterday. The publication of the terms of the Anglo-Argentine Pact was followed by active bidding for "free" pesos from Buenos Aires, and towards the close of the day the "free" rate fell to a shade above the official selling rate. A slight reaction occurred in the closing dealings, however. Apart from the peso, movements in rates were generally small and of little interest. Selling pressure on the dollar had to some extent subsided. The franc was under official control in the spot market, but movements in forward rates indicated a certain amount of uncertainty. The demand for Dutch guilders was renewed, and the Amsterdam authorities found it necessary to intervene to prevent wide movements in rates.

THE AMERICAN MARKETS

WALL STREET AGAIN ON THE LOWER SIDE

Reuter's Telegrams.

NEW YORK, Wednesday.

The complexities of the foreign situation were partially offset by the encouraging American business news, but the failure of the pivotal issues to move up exerted a depressing influence generally. At the same time the strikes in various parts of the country were viewed with concern, though certain authorities were inclined to consider them as being symptomatic of the current business recovery. The market ended with a sagging tendency on a turnover of 2,320,000 shares.

The close was heavy, with a long list of stocks fractions to $1 down. Particular despondency was apparent in the Chemical, Farm Implement and Merchandising groups.

Sterling exchange opened 1/32 down at 4.90¾, and dropped to 4.90 11/16 during the morning. The rate improved to 4.90 27/32 in the afternoon, and finally closed 1/16 higher (compared with the previous close) at 4.90 27/32.

Silver was ½c. up at 46½c.

TRANSATLANTIC AIR SERVICES

MAIL IN 3 YEARS: PASSENGERS IN 7 YEARS

A regular transatlantic air mail service will be in operation within three years was forecast by Mr. P. C. Garratt, manager of the De Havilland Aircraft Company of Canada, who returned to Canada from Liverpool yesterday on the liner Duchess of York, after spending three months in this country.

Mr. Garratt said he believed ordinary 'planes would be more useful and reliable than seaplanes, because there was no accommodation for seaplanes either on the Mersey or at Montreal. He thought it would be about seven years before a regular Atlantic passenger air service came into operation.

The Warsaw Budget measure which has been tabled before the Chamber for the period 1937-38 estimates total expenditure at 2,293,429,600 zlotys (about £92,000,000), of which military services account for 768 million zlotys (£30,000,000).

BACON-CURING INDUSTRY

VALUE OF FREE STATE'S OUTPUT

The growing importance of the Free State bacon-curing industry is indicated in a preliminary census of production for 1935. According to this return, the gross output of bacon, hams, sausages, lard, and other products of this industry was worth £5,163,741 in 1935—an increase of £207,509 as compared with 1934. The bulk of the output is made up of bacon, hams, and gammons, which scaled 1,114,110 cwt., worth £4,255,062, as against a total value of £4,104,841 in 1934.

The net output, deducting cost of ingredients, etc., was worth £732,990, as compared with £599,937 in 1934.

The number of persons engaged on the administrative, clerical, and technical staffs totalled 571, against 564 in 1934; while wage-earners increased from 2,538 in 1934 to 2,597 in 1935. The wages bill increased by £21,417 to a total of £245,764.

THE GAIETY THEATRE

"MADAM BUTTERFLY"

The Universal Grand Opera Company gave what was in many respects the best performance of the season at the Gaiety Theatre last night, when Puccini's "Madam Butterfly" was presented to an audience that packed all the popular parts of the house. While "Butterfly" is always a great magnet, there was a particular interest last night in the appearance in the title part of the Dublin soprano, Miss May Devitt.

In this, her initial début with a professional company, she scored a signal success. All too often the Cho-cho-san has been, in physique, anything but a "Butterfly." Puccini, like other modern composers, having no hesitation in creating a heroine with the figure of "sweet fifteen" but requiring the vocal technique of the matured prima donna for the music. Last night the audience at any rate had the pleasure of seeing a soprano who could flit about the stage, light of foot and dainty of action. Miss Devitt showed an intimate knowledge of the requirements of the character, and in her acting alone proved a very accomplished artiste. She used an economy of gesture. In singing, her voice responded surprisingly to the exacting rôle. Of a light quality, it had just the right weight and appeal to fit the character of the young Japanese girl in the opening act. Here the famous closing duet was excellently sung by herself and the tenor. She was not quite so satisfying in the second act, where one would have liked a greater depth of passion in the voice. While she was always sure of her line and music, she had not the weight to paint in its full colours the stark tragedy of the little deserted wife. Still, she gave a moving reading of the part, and won ready applause for her treatment of the popular air, "One Fine Day." She had every reason to feel satisfied with her performance.

Horace Vincent was the tenor, and sang so well as to suggest that Lieutenant Pinkerton is his best part. His voice was always coming through well, and stood up to the music with little trace of nasal resonance. His work in the love duet in the first act was capital, and the climax was well developed. His flitting appearance in the last act was intensely dramatic.

Bernard Ross played the part of the Consul Sharpless as well as one remembers it ever to have been done for many years here. His fine appearance and the easy flow of his warm baritone lent distinction to the character. One liked the little touch of contempt he introduced in the last scene with Pinkerton.

The part of Suzuki, Madame Butterfly's faithful Japanese maid, was played with quiet effect by Olive Westwood, the Flower duet being well sung.

Mr. Cuthbert Hawley, who conducted, showed intimate knowledge of his score, and got some delightful effects considering the limitations of his orchestra.

To-night—"Cavalleria Rusticana" and "I Pagliacci."

It was announced from the stage last night that Mr. Heddle Nash would definitely appear at Saturday's matinée in "La Boheme," with May Devitt as the Mimi.

THE DUBLIN LEAGUE

At the Premier, Dun Laoghaire, last night, the home player, R. Cronin, beat J. McCarthy (Jordan's) by 61-37, 58-27, thus making sure of at least a point in the week's match.

At O'Hara's, the other Dun Laoghaire venue, the home player, R. Heffernan, was beaten by J. Green (Oxford) by 41-75, 51-28, 64-40; and it is yet possible for Oxford to save a point if they win again to-night.

At Pembroke, A. Nolan beat A. Barnes (Palace) by 45-35, 54-41.

GOLD CUP MATCHES

At Birmingham. S. Smith 19, Davis 17. Scores (Davis first)—100-41, 47-68, 46-76, 36-94, 98-28, 26-108, 52-80, 25-94, 65-55, 68-57, 39-79, 100-24.

At Thurston's. Inman 18, Lindrum 18. Scores (Lindrum first)—23-92, 83-71, 67-71, 76-46, 109-37, 60-69, 49-76, 111-43, 32-101, 20-123, 88-48, 109-36.

WATERLOO FAVOURITE INJURED

Rotten Row, who has been installed favourite for next year's Waterloo Cup, injured himself in a trial last week-end, and Mr. Rowland Rank, his owner, stated yesterday that there is a doubt whether the dog will be able to compete. It appears that in his trial he seriously wrenched a shoulder, and, in addition, badly put up a toe. The injury is such that there may not be time to get him fit. Rotten Row ran up last year to Hand Grenade.

"THE MISTLETOE BOUGH."

Writing on this subject in the Weekly Irish Times, the Garden Correspondent says:—If the berries are bruised and rubbed into a prepared incision or a natural crack in the branch of an old apple, crab or whitethorn tree, they will probably germinate, if some means is taken to keep them there; a strip of some light material tied round the branch will afford the necessary protection until germination has taken place. The distribution of this peculiar plant in English orchards and woods, as well as in our own country, is attributed to birds.
